Three Hitler Peace Proposals Made to Britain, French Say

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
LONDON, April 29.—The A. F. I., independent French news agency, reported without qualification tonight that Germany had made three peace proposals to Britain within the last six weeks.

Landis Warns Atlanta Raids Are Imminent

By AL SHARP.
The United States can stand to lose personnel, but cannot stand to lose vital war plants, Dean James M. Landis, national director of civilian defense, said here yesterday, adding that all-night blackouts will be held in all vital industrial areas—such as Atlanta—when necessary to perfect air defense.

"We do not know when to expect attacks," Landis told a regular meeting of the Georgia State Defense Council. "I feel they may come tonight or tomorrow night or the next night."

He said equipment to combat air raids would be distributed as soon as available, adding that cities and towns where there are plants vital to the war effort will be on the I-A priority list.

Need Training.
Landis spoke of the raids to come in a matter-of-fact manner as if he was sure they would come, and stressed the fact that only through organization and training and hard work could their effects be thrown off.

Landis was here to attend a conference of regional civilian defense heads, who will hear authorities and experts from Washington and other cities at the Ansley hotel today.

During the meeting E. S. Papp was elected to succeed J. W. Wolf as vice chairman of the fifth district and Charles B. Gramling took Dewey Johnson's place. Lee Trimble, of Milledgeville, was named vice chairman of the sixth district.

In emphasizing the necessity for perfect blackouts, Landis said "practice should be held until all lights would be out in a few minutes."

"It isn't hard to get a complete blackout after weeks of warning and preparation," Landis said. "You should practice until surprise blackouts can be effected on a few minutes' notice. Twelve-hour blackouts should be held if necessary."

That is true of communications centers and all activities in the defense setup, Landis added.

Britain's Mistake.
Landis pointed out how the British had made their air-raid wardens the butt of jokes—how they laughed at them even until Dunkirk. Then he explained what a hash German bombers made of England on the first blitzes.

"Then the British got the situation under control and the organization to combat air raids clicked," Landis declared. "It clicked as ours will, but we must have the organization. We must train our men. It's tough work, and it must be done."

Landis said the nation's defense workers are facing a critical period. "The weather in the Atlantic was better in April than it was in March. It will be better in May and in June," he said. "Tokyo showed us what can be done."

"Tokyo and Pearl Harbor were the organization. We must train our men. It's tough work, and it must be done."

British Report Naval Gains in Mediterranean

CAIRO, April 29.—(AP)—British bombers attacked a "small enemy convoy" in the Gulf of Sirte yesterday, scoring a hit on a tanker and shooting down two Dornier 18's, an RAF communiqué said today.

In another part of the Mediterranean, the communiqué said, a medium-sized merchant vessel escorted by two or three destroyers was attacked and hit by torpedo-carrying aircraft Monday night.

Another aerial torpedo hit on a ship was reported in a third convoy attack Sunday night.

Episcopalians Deadlocked in Vote for Bishop

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
ROME, Ga., April 29.—(Thursday)—The council, composed of clergymen and laymen of the Diocese of Atlanta, meeting here to elect a successor to the late Bishop H. J. Mikell, recessed early this morning without a successful ballot. They will meet again at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
ROME, Ga., April 29.—Apparently hopelessly deadlocked, Episcopal delegates named to select a successor to the late Bishop H. J. Mikell, balloted until late in the night without any of the four nominees receiving the required majority.

Approximately 150 ministers and laymen of the diocese of Atlanta met here yesterday for the purpose of naming a bishop, began balloting late in this afternoon after four clergymen, three from the diocese and one from Louisville, Ky., had been nominated.

Six ballots were cast when a brief recess was called shortly before midnight, and some of the delegates expressed the opinion that a hopeless deadlock had developed.

The delegates voted down two resolutions introduced during the night, calling for a postponement of the election.

The four clergymen nominated are:
The Rev. Theodore S. Will, D. D., rector of All Saints' church, Atlanta.

The Rev. David Cady Wright Jr., of Emmanuel church, Athens.

The Rev. John Moore Walker, D. D., Atlanta.

The Rev. Elwood L. Haines, of Louisville, Ky.

For election a candidate must receive a majority of the clergy votes and a majority of the lay votes on the same ballot. If after a certain time, decided by members of the council, a candidate fails to receive a majority, the election is called off and arrangements made for another election at a later date.

Standley Confers With Stalin, Molotov
KULIBYSHEV, April 29.—(AP)—Admiral William H. Standley, United States ambassador to Russia, returned to Kulibyshev today by plane from Moscow, where he presented his credentials to President Michael Kalinin and conferred with Premier Joseph Stalin and Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov.

HE WAS LISTENING—Captain H. T. Wheelless, hero pilot of a flying fortress, heard President Roosevelt last night praise his courage and that of his fellow crewmen who carried out a mission despite attack of 18 Jap planes. Here the pilot is at home in Fresno, Cal., with wife and daughter, Raymonda Jean. (Another picture on Page 2).

Aerial Hero Wild Boy, Kin Says

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.
The Army bomber pilot hero whose exploits over the Pacific made such good telling by President Roosevelt Tuesday night was a wild little boy from Texas who used to scare his city-bred cousin from Atlanta to death.

That is the recollection that his Atlanta cousin, Mrs. W. L. M. Austin, of 887 Myrtle street, N. E., has of brave Captain Hewitt T. Wheelless, who deposited a load of bombs on Japanese transports and then maneuvered his crippled plane safely home through a maze of 18 enemy fighters.

"He was a lively boy," recalled Mrs. Austin yesterday. "Of course, I've kept in touch with him through his mother in recent years. But when he was a child we all used to gather at the family home in Shawboro, La., and I page opposite two pictures of Captain Wheelless."

"It is funny that I had them together that way," said Mrs. Austin. "Of course, we knew the story about Hewitt a month or so ago but we didn't dream it would ever be singled out for attention by the President. Even last night when he started telling it, I said, 'Why that sounds like Hewitt!'"

But there are so many heroes in this war I thought some other young man had done the same thing. Then at the last when he gave the name, I was thrilled to death. Several of my friends who knew he was my cousin called and a few of them who were at a little party, told me they were so thrilled by it they were going to drink a toast to him."

Although abhorring the idea of riding to glory on the coattails of her illustrious young cousin, Mrs. Austin has included clippings about him and pictures sent her by her mother in a family scrapbook which she keeps as a hobby and she is frankly "thrilled" over his heroism.

Just by accident, a picture of President Roosevelt, who is the only "outsider" to make Mrs. Austin's scrapbook, is pasted on the

Invaders' Spearhead In Lightning Stroke To Beat Rain Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
CHUNGKING, China, April 29.—The outskirts of Lashio, eastern terminus of the Mandalay-Lashio railway and teeming hostel of Chinese truck drivers who for three years have kept traffic moving over the Burma Road, have been reached by a Japanese spearhead which thrust with a lightning stroke through the mountainous Shan states, the Chinese announced tonight.

Still another dire menace to the vital feeder line to China was apparent, with the Japanese brushing around Chinese flanks toward Hsipaow, 40 miles southwest of Lashio.

So grave was the threat to the entire Chinese position as a result of this all but completed severance of the famed Burma road, that the Chinese command felt compelled to assure the world that it had no intention of giving up the fight.

"It is obvious," said the communiqué, "that the Japanese occupation of Hsipaow will have serious consequences."

"On the other hand the gravity of the Burma situation by no means weakens the Chinese determination to continue resistance in Burma."

In the westward thrust toward Hsipaow the Japanese were said to have reached the town of Nam-mang (too small to appear on available maps).

New Lashio, it added, was reached Tuesday morning. (New Lashio is believed to be a new part of the old town, grown up rapidly since late in 1938 when the Burma road was opened to keep a flow of supplies to the Chinese armies, otherwise cut off by Japanese blockade and occupation of the seaboard.)

The Japanese had burst through the mountains with dazzling speed, for only this morning reports in Chungking had placed them at Mansan, 50 miles due south.

Obviously they had pushed forward their tanks and troops with breakneck abandon in a supreme effort to beat the monsoon, the westerly rains which already are starting and which in two weeks will turn Burma's lowlands into quagmires.

Admiral Pound Flies Atlantic to England
OTTAWA, Ont., April 29.—(AP) Admiral of the Fleet Sir Dudley Pound, first sea lord, has arrived safely in England after flying the Atlantic from Canada, the Royal Canadian navy announced today.

It was conceded, however, that the bombers "reached and attacked" objectives at Trondheim and reports from Sweden said Monday night's raid was so heavy that exhaust flames were visible on the Swedish border.

British quarters expressed the belief that the destruction of shore supplies and facilities to Trondheim and Kiel would either lead the Nazi ships in port or drive them out to sea ill-equipped for the challenge of the Allies' navies.

This was in line with the British air policy as announced to a cheering house of commons today by Sir Archibald Sinclair, air secretary.

"To destroy the enemy capacity to make war."

How that policy had been followed was shown in the official figures on the April offensive. Twenty-four times since April 1 the RAF has hit hard at targets in Germany's new Europe.

Rostock, with its great Heinkel Aircraft Works and Neptune shipyards, has been eliminated from Germany's present war effort by what a Swedish traveler arriving from there in Stockholm called "four nights of horror."

Other reports reaching London said Rostock was an ash heap, its 90,000 population fled or dead, with only firemen and a few troops left to rake the ruins and combat looters.

Review the News In 'Buddy' Letters
Atlantans now have a chance to review local events of the week each Sunday when their copy of The Constitution is delivered.

They may do so by reading the "Dear Buddy" letter to be published each Sunday morning, and written primarily to give the week's local news to Atlanta boys now serving Uncle Sam in all parts of the world.

The "Dear Buddy" letters, breezy, newsy letters will give brief reviews of the major local events and, while they will keep the soldiers posted, they will also be interesting to Atlantans for reviewing the local happenings during the past week.

Don't miss it on the front page of The Constitution Sunday morning.

American Planes Stiffen Malta's Resistance

Australians Warned Of Invasion Threats

CANBERRA, Australia, April 29.—(AP)—Australia's leaders gave their continent the heartening news today that many more United States troops, tanks, planes and guns have reached these shores, but they warned the people earnestly that the threat of Japanese invasion remains very real.

Prime Minister John Curtin and Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford, in parliamentary speeches, said frankly that Allied air blows had not yet loosened the Japanese grip on the islands to the north, northeast and west, and that these were being reinforced with sinister purpose.

Private advice from an advanced Allied base bore them out, and so did Tokyo's own utterances.

The Allied base dispatches said a full-scale Japanese attack on Port Moresby, Australian outpost on New Guinea to the north of the continent, might be expected within two weeks. At least 15 enemy ships were reported concentrated at Rabaul, New Britain, with others off Lae, New Guinea.

The Japanese also were reported massing new and better warplanes in the northern islands.

Tokyo broadcasts yesterday reported the occupation, as of April 19, of "all strategically important bases" on the northern shore of Dutch New Guinea and in the Molucca islands to the west, all of which might be used for attack on the north Australian coast.

United States fliers raided the airbase at Lae again yesterday, destroying an ammunition dump, and fought off eight bombers and 14 fighters which attacked the Allied airbase at Port Moresby.

Telling of the newest contingent of the AEF, the prime minister said:

"Strong additional United States reinforcements, which are well equipped and which include important technical units, have arrived."

"The equipment position has materially improved."

In addition to acceleration of local production of munitions, supplies of tanks and guns are arriving from overseas in increasing numbers, and quantities of vital war equipment have been received from ships originally destined for the Dutch East Indies.

Supplies of modern United States aircraft have made possible reinforcement of our northern air bases, resulting in constant raiding of the Japanese bases in New Guinea, New Britain and Timor."

7 Are Killed As 2 Planes Hit in Midair

ORLANDO, Fla., April 29.—(AP) Seven Army fliers were killed today when a bomber and a pursuit ship collided in midair about nine miles west of here.

The dead were announced by Colonel Thomas S. Voss, commandant of the Orlando air base, as:

Second Lieutenant Ernest W. Robertson, of Eugene, Ore.

Second Lieutenant Joseph S. Smith, of Yoakum, Texas.

Second Lieutenant Richard R. Carnevale, of Columbus, Ohio.

Private M. C. Brown, of Detroit, Mich.

Private L. A. Gerhart, of Wernersville, Pa.

Private William E. Wimf, of Holland, Mich.

Second Lieutenant Robert S. Boyce, of Chillicothe, Ohio, pilot of the pursuit ship.

The bomber, carrying the crew of six, was attached to MacDill Field at Tampa, and the pursuit plane was from the Orlando air base.

Both ships burned following the collision, the wreckage of the bomber falling into an orange grove and the pursuit plane coming to earth two miles away.

An Army board of inquiry was set up to investigate the crash.

Go Slow on Limiting Pay, Atlantans Warn

By LAMAR Q. BALL.
A plea for slow movement in federal government proposals to limit individual incomes and corporation profits came yesterday from Atlanta capitalists, industrialists and business leaders.

"Calm and proper discussion," was advised by the higher income groups, as they warned that privately supported charities, educational foundations based on insurance investments, real estate values and the very business life of the nation itself, would suffer from movements "too swift and too drastic."

"We'll be slapping an 18th amendment on progress and national income," was the terse summary of the Washington plan.

Georgia tax officials viewed the sudden enforcement of these proposed measures as swift demolition of the state's complete tax system, forcing those who must dig up the revenues to seek new granite foundations among the Georgia hills for "some new method of taxation."

Income Equalizing.
Low income groups hailed the Roosevelt proposals as a means of "equalizing the national income."

Businessmen, bankers, industrialists—everyone who carries the heaviest share of the national economic load—viewed the plans as a governmental administration of death rattles to that government's only means of paying the heavy costs of war.

"It's a dangerous experiment," said one manufacturer. "This is no time to experiment with a plan that has all the earmarks of an utter washout."

The war bills, the federal pay rolls have to be met, was the con-

Woodmen To Hear National Leader

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
DUBLIN, Ga., April 29.—D. E. Bradshaw, of Omaha, Neb., president of the Woodmen of the World, will be principal speaker at the Southeastern Log Rollers' Association convention at Davisboro Thursday afternoon, and large delegations from Dublin, Wrightsville, and other W. O. W. camps in this section are scheduled to attend.

The program begins at 6:30 p. m., with a supper for visiting delegates. Davisboro is in Washington county, near Tenille. This is one of the few times the head of the Woodmen has ever visited Georgia, and J. R. Cherry, district W. O. W. manager, has called for as many members to attend as possible.

Interest To Be Paid Upon Central Bonds

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 29.—(AP)—Interest will be paid on collateral trust bonds of the Central Railroad & Banking Company of Georgia, maturing May 1, Merrell P. Callaway, trustee, announced today.
Callaway notified holders that interest coupons on the bonds would be paid May 1 upon presentation of the coupons at the principal office of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company in New York.

J. D. McCartney, assistant to the trustee, said there were $4,840,000 of these bonds outstanding, with ownership widely distributed in Georgia and Alabama. Several of the bonds have been extended from 1937, McCartney said, and although several methods of dealing with the principal have been discussed, none has been decided upon.

Grand Jury Praises Press' Co-operation

Political Ambition Scored by Body in Presentments.

The Fulton county grand jury, in special presentments, yesterday thanked Atlanta newspapers "for their fine spirit of co-operation" in assisting that body to get its recommendations before the public. "This service was invaluable," the presentments said.

The jurors also declared that "political ambition for self is wholly undesirable and must be eliminated if we expect to grow into a greater and stronger nation."

"To our citizenry," the presentments continued, "we recommend most earnestly that they continue 'knocking on the door' until undesirable practices in our political life have been removed."

The grand jury announced it would release its final findings Friday.

Rap 'Blank Check' Draft Aid

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—A senate committee agreed informally today that a proposed scale of allowances for dependents of men in the armed services was necessary, but expressed opposition to a request by the Federal Security Agency for flexible authority to supplement such payments in "hardship cases."

Although Federal Security would not administer the regular payments set forth in the measure, the bill provides that appeals for additional allowances be referred to that agency.

The request for flexible authority was made by Geoffrey May, of Federal Security, who told the committee that from 5 to 15 per cent of the families or dependents of men of military service age would qualify as "hardship cases" under the measure. Senator Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, protested, however, that there was no top nor bottom limit on such a proposal and expressed doubt that congress would be willing "to sign any such blank check."

Uniform Schedule.

Senator Lee, Democrat, Oklahoma, asked May if the provision was not "intended to correct a number of social evils that always have existed" rather than to meet wartime emergencies.
Both senators suggested it might be wiser to raise the entire schedule of uniform allowances contained in the administration-approved measure rather than give Federal Security what Johnson called a free hand to set supplementary payments "at one dollar or one thousand dollars a month."

Spokesmen for the Army, Navy and selective service who appeared before the committee testified they favored a uniform schedule of payments to be paid by the services individually but had "no objection" to additional Federal Security payments. They added they would favor increasing the proposed schedule should congress decide to eliminate the FSA supplement.

2 Classes of Dependents.

The measure, based on expected congressional approval of a bill now pending in the house which would raise the minimum pay of men in the armed services to $42 monthly, provides for two classes of dependents: Class A—Wives and children; Class B—Parents, grandchildren, brothers and sisters.

Wives and children would receive $20 monthly, which would be taken from the pay of enlisted men. To this the government would add $20 for a wife with no child, $30 for a wife and one child, with $10 more for each additional child; $15 if there is no wife but one child, $25 if two children, and $20 to a former wife divorced, to whom alimony has been decreed.

Allowances to the "B" class dependents would be optional with the man in military service. If he already had "A" class dependents, another $5 would be taken from his monthly pay or $25 in all. If not, he could pay $20 monthly to his "B" dependents. In addition, the government would pay $15 for one dependent parent, $25 for two parents and $5 each for each grandchild, brother, sister and additional parent. Class B allowances would be limited to a top of $50 monthly.

Major Francis V. Keesling, Selective Service spokesman, told the committee that provisions for wives, children and other dependents might eliminate many deferments under the present draft act and regulations.

Both Major Keesling and Major William S. Richards, who appeared for the War Department, asserted that the time had come in this war for allowance payments to dependents. They said families of a number of men already in the armed services were entitled to such payments and that more men with dependents would be enrolled.

Texas Town Flattened; 9 Dead in Storm Monday Night

1,500 Left Homeless, at Least 125 Injured.

CROWELL, Tex., April 29.—(AP)—The Red Cross cared for 1,500 homeless tonight as rescue workers searched debris for further victims of a devastating tornado and fire that killed nine persons and flattened half the buildings in this west Texas town.

At least 125 others, 30 or 40 injured seriously, were in hospitals and homes in adjoining towns. Little but wreckage remained of the business district. A business block housing three stores and the post office was a smoldering ruin. The picturesque old Ford county courthouse was a shambles, the Baptist church a pile of brick and timbers.

Whole blocks of homes in the residential district were shattered. All utilities were out of commission when the tornado struck about 9 o'clock last night. Some victims huddled in the Methodist church and in the jail during the night.

Colquitt Court Cut As Aid to Farmers

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
MOUNTAINE, Ga., April 29.—No civil cases will be tried during the May term of Colquitt city court here and jurors summoned for these cases have been dismissed, Judge L. L. Moore said today.

Weather has delayed planting of crops in this section, Judge Moore said, and in a move to co-operate with the farmers in getting their spring farm work done, trial of civil cases has been postponed.

Joseph Davies To Talk Here Monday Night

Ex-Ambassador to Russia To Open Benefit Symposium.

Joseph E. Davies, former American ambassador to Russia and author of the best selling "Mission to Moscow," will open the World Affairs Symposium, a Red Cross benefit, with a speech on Russia Monday night in the municipal auditorium.

Also to appear on the symposium program during the subsequent days are Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, James R. Young and Louis Fischer, who all will be present for the opening address, it was announced yesterday.

Davies will discuss the part played by Russia in shaping the way of life in America and in determining our hope of survival in the greatest war in history. He will be introduced by Frank H. Neely, vice president and general manager of Rich's.

Proceeds from sale of tickets to the symposium lectures will go to the Red Cross. The speakers are being brought to Atlanta by Rich's as a part of their 75th anniversary celebration.

Miss Rawlings will speak next Tuesday afternoon in the Magnolia room at Rich's. The lecture begins at 4 o'clock. Her subject will be light and witty, interweaving observations on life in a small Florida community. Wright Bryan, of the Journal, will introduce her.

Tuesday night James R. Young and Louis Fischer, noted news correspondents, will conduct a forum at the municipal auditorium. Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Atlanta Constitution, will preside.

3 Marines Cited As Rescue Heroes

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—Lieutenant General Thomas Holcomb, Marine commandant, today commended three marines for courageous action in connection with the sinking of a merchant ship on which they were traveling to England several months ago. The ship was not identified. The men were Corporal Herman W. Trail, of Twila, Ky.; Taylor G. Collom, private first class, of Silvera, Miss.; and Sheila O. Jones, private first class, of Franklinton, Louisiana. Collom received a head injury after the ship was torpedoed and was rendered temporarily unconscious. Upon regaining consciousness he swam to an oil tanker several hundred yards away and assisted a seaman in rescuing four nurses from the water. Jones was commended for helping Collom when Collom was injured and, afterward, for "ex-

Trackless Trolleys Run in Reverse

Trackless trolleys running backwards along Peachtree road was a familiar sight last night. Snapping of a trolley wire near the intersection of Piedmont and Peachtree road about 10 o'clock last night, resulted in several of the big electric busses having to back up to Buckhead in order to maintain their schedule. Halted at the point of the break, the trolleys either had to remain there until repairs could be completed, or else back into Buck-head where they were able to switch over to the incoming line. RECEIVES PROMOTION. MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., April 29.—Promotion of Corporal Remus G. Hooten Jr., of Detachment Induction Station, CASC, Fort Benning, to the grade of technician 5th, has been announced.

Church Is On Trial, Bishop Tells Diocese

Rt. Rev. Barnwell Says Fight Is for Better World.

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 29.—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. Middleton S. Barnwell, bishop of Georgia, told the annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of South Carolina that now is the challenge of the moment for the church.

Bishop Barnwell, addressing delegates in the Church of the Holy Communion here last night, said that "the significance of this whole tragic moment in the life of the world is that we shall be a people worthy of victory when it comes."

Emphasizing the need for God in the present war days, the bishop declared "we are not fighting for markets, world domination, nor revenge, but for a chance to build a better world."

"Battles are fought and won in distant places, but the real victory begins in our hearts today," he said. "If we win, we shall need God to keep us humble, true and just, for unless we are these things in triumph we will cast the world back into darkness greater than ever."

Manila Bay Forts Blast at Japanese, Sink Enemy Vessel

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP)—The Manila bay forts, blasting at the Japanese with heavy artillery fire, sank an enemy ship in the bay and silenced some of the gun batteries in Cavite and Bataan, the War Department reported today.

A communique containing the department's first report on the Philippines in two days, said also that the forts, replying to heavy shelling from the Japanese guns, broke up troop concentrations on both sides of the bay.

The ship, an armed vessel operated in the bay by the Japanese, was described in a report from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia as of medium size.

In Panay, American and Filipino troops still were resisting fiercely the enemy drive for control of that rich central island.

Fighting was reported in the vicinity of San Remigio, in the west coast province of Antique, and near Alibunan, just north of Lambunao, from which the defenders retired more than a week ago under the pressure of repeated enemy attacks in overwhelming numbers.

Japanese forces in Panay have been concentrated largely in the ports and in the coastal areas, the communique said.

These factors, plus the continuing fighting on Cebu and the recently reported aerial reconnaissance of the island of Negros, appeared to be part of a concerted Japanese drive to break up inter-island communications and to find and destroy any remaining air fields in the islands which might be used by American planes.

Strauss Urges Co-operation in Price 'Freezing'

Work Must Come From 'Grassroots,' Official of OPA Asserts.

Successful operation of the new general maximum price regulation means that the work "has got to come, not from Washington, but from the grassroots," the regional director of the Office of Price Administration here said yesterday.

Local "war boards" will be the key points in the sweeping rent ceiling and price control program, declared Regional Director Oscar Strauss Jr.

To these the public must take complaints and problems, Strauss said at a press conference following a meeting of southern retail executives called here to discuss the new order.

OPA does not have sufficient personnel to police the entire nation in seeking enforcement of the regulations, he pointed out, and as a result the public must be "educated to compliance."

Merchants who attended the regional conference today, Strauss declared, "all seemed very anxious to comply. They are sick and tired of having to carry tremendous inventories for their protection against price increases because most stores must have a quick turnover of their merchandise."

He said some "hardship cases" were inevitable in a program so all-inclusive as the overall price order, but pointed out provisions had been made for adjustments.

Retail Price Fainsod Heads Control Liked Retail Trade By Canadians Unit of OPA

Gross Sales Holding Up Well, Leaders Declare.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 29.—(Canadian Press)—Canadian business today looked back on six months of retail price control, generally found it good, and accepted with satisfaction creation of price ceilings in the United States on a basis similar to that in operation here since December 1.

The Canadian government has paid out some subsidies to prevent price increases in certain commodities and the wartime prices and trade board, charged with keeping price ceilings in place, said its work had been effective in preventing an inflation.

Various business leaders drew this composite picture of the result of price ceilings in Canada: Gross sales were holding up well and could be called "normal" except where there had been government restrictions on production; advertising expenditures were down in all stores; the freezing of prices has affected retailers' profits which are down.

One manufacturing association official, asserting price ceilings in the United States would be "great boon to Canadian manufacturers," said:

"Tanneries and leather manufacturers who made purchases in the United States were hard hit (by Canadian price controls). The cost of raw products in the United States went up but our prices were frozen here."

He said manufacturers generally supported the price ceiling because it prevented inflation, a condition which would be "far worse" than price control.

High School Events Open Today in Macon

Athletic and Literary Contests Are To Be Held at Mercer.

Contestants are winners in the 10 district eliminations conducted during recent weeks. Judges will be provided by the Mercer faculty and staff, and headquarters for the occasion will be in Porter gymnasium.

A state executive committee meeting is also scheduled. F. E. Barron, superintendent of schools at Homerville, is president of the association, and S. F. Burke, of Thomaston, superintendent, is secretary-treasurer.

The school representatives will be among more than 1,000 visitors on the Mercer campus this week. The institution's yearly pilgrimage day is set for Friday, with other functions to follow.

Many Praise Order Fixing Price Ceilings

Retailers, However, Say Order Will Harm Them.

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—The government's general price freeze order—greatest economic control effort ever undertaken in America—won praise from many business and financial leaders throughout the country today as a step in the right direction.

Many retailers, however, insisted that freezing both wholesale and retail prices as they existed in March failed to take into account faster advances in many wholesale prices, and asserted that unless adjustments were made, retailers' profit margins would disappear and many would be forced to the wall.

Other criticisms were that the general anti-inflation program left wages subject only to voluntary stabilization, and permitted further substantial advances in farm prices, pending new and uncertain legislation.

Among comments of labor leaders: Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL), at Indianapolis: "The President will not be able to stabilize the necessities of life to protect us. . . . Until we are satisfied that it can be done, labor will oppose any such thing as a standard wage."

Lucy Randolph Mason, public relations director of the CIO in the south:

"Labor approves freezing of prices and freezing of profits. When this is done wage freezing will not be necessary. Labor's demands for wage increases have been based on huge profits of industry."

Phil Brady, president, Oregon Federation of Labor (AFL): "Some unions are in the midst of negotiations for increases which even the employers recognize as reasonable."

Comments of farm leaders included: Hassel F. Schenck, president, Indiana Farm Bureau:

"Agriculture would be glad to comply with price fixing if at the same time an equitable price with farm products is placed on industrial products and wages."

The farm bureau is opposed to a ceiling on farm prices at 100 per cent of parity.

Louis G. Tabor, past master of the National Grange:

"The vast price freezing program will be successful only by treating labor, agriculture and industry exactly alike on questions of wages, prices and profits."

"The spirit of Concord bridge is aflame on the farms of the nation."

George had previously presented the Logansville High school with 2,700 volumes of the best literature while Holland Strother, superintendent of the Danville school, was principal. When Strother went to Danville and found the school there in need of a library he remembered George and wrote him. The result was that George sent him 950 volumes for the school library.

Bulkeley Aide Bares Horrors Of Blockade

Torpedo Commander Is Called 'Without Nerve or He's Crazy.'

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP) One of the last civilians to run the Japanese blockade through the Philippines and down to Australia—a veteran of the terrible bombing of Cavite, the siege of Bataan and various shelling of Cebu—pondered a wide acquaintance with brave men today and concluded that Lieutenant John D. Bulkeley, of the Navy's Philippine torpedo boat squadron, led all the rest.

Bulkeley, who has repeatedly torpedoed Japanese warships and heavily protected transports, was described by John T. McCabe, 40, torpedo boat technician of Gros Point, Mich., in these words:

"He's either a man without a nerve in his body or he's crazy, or a combination of both."

"The man doesn't know fear," added McCabe. "He not only goes out on his own boat, but as long as he can stay awake he goes out on other boats while his own crew is taking a rest."

McCabe said that as the war progressed Bulkeley, "whose men would follow him anywhere in the world," had grown a tremendous black beard, which he declined to cut off because he thought it was lucky.

Official communiques have credited Bulkeley's squadron of swift sea fighters with torpedoing two Jap cargo ships in January, a warship of unidentified type in February, and a light cruiser in April. The squadron has been on almost constant patrol since the war started, McCabe related, and was largely responsible for getting General Douglas MacArthur and his party out of the Philippines.

McCabe was Bulkeley's squadron engineer. He had arrived in the Philippines on the last clipper to Manila, reporting November 28. At first, as a civil technician, he served in a strictly consultative capacity, but after the bombing of Cavite, during which his tin hat saved his head from being crushed by a flying chunk of concrete, he became as much a member of the squadron as the officers and enlisted men.

Maintenance was a tough job. McCabe gave great praise to the miracle men mechanics of the beached Navy ship Canopus, who made their repair into a machine shop and turned out parts which kept the boats running, the guns firing and the little air force flying.

McCabe said that the Canopus was a target of more than 300 bombs before it was finally demolished to prevent its falling into enemy hands when Bataan crumbled. The steel sides of the old ship were prickly with pegs driven into shrapnel holes.

Fire in Magazine.

Once a delayed action bomb ripped through three decks and started a fire in the vessel's most vulnerable spot, its magazine, Lieutenant Commander Adolph Hede, McCabe said, "personally went into the powder magazine and put the fire out." (Hede's home is at Long Beach, Cal.)

McCabe withdrew from Cavite to Bataan with naval personnel a few days after the war started and was there until February 20, when he went to the fortified island of Corregidor and from there journeyed on an old river boat, traveling by night from one island to another, to Cebu.

He left Cebu on a British freighter March 17, "strictly in the status of a stowaway." The crew members were drawing 18 months' pay to make this one trip through the blockade, he said.

They took the ship past Japanese bases, sighted a Japanese warship, and were bombed by a Japanese plane before finally reaching Australia after 18 days. From Bataan to Australia, McCabe estimated, he had traveled about 6,000 miles through the Japanese blockade.

Central To Shift Train Schedules

The Southland Express, Chicago to Jacksonville express train, will be discontinued with the last trip scheduled to leave Jacksonville May 2, officials of the Central of Georgia railway announced yesterday.

The Southland will leave Atlanta at 8:10 o'clock each night instead of 7:55 o'clock, and will arrive in Atlanta at 8:50 o'clock instead of 9:50, while the Flamingo-Dixie Limited will leave Atlanta at 10:35 o'clock each morning instead of at 10:10 o'clock.

Register Now, GEA President Urges Teachers

Dr. L. D. Haskew Asks Educators To Qualify for Fall Voting.

Georgia school teachers have taken active steps to build up a big registration of voters for the state primary in the early fall.

Dr. L. D. Haskew, newly elected president of the Georgia Education Association, yesterday sent the following telegram to every school superintendent in the state:

"Urge you to see that every friend of education in your system is registered and qualified to vote by May 2, the final date. Imperative for protection of educational progress that this be done. Please report results to us."

The Georgia Education Association at its recent convention adopted a policy calling for an active campaign to assure protection for the professional standards of education in the state.

Ralph L. Ramsey, secretary of the association, left yesterday for Hot Springs, Ark., where he will speak at the meeting of the Arkansas Association of School Administrators. He will deliver two addresses on "Health and Physical Fitness" and "Education and National Defense."

MAYOR UNOPPOSED.

SPARTA, Ga., April 29.—Mayor Harry Binion, of this city, will be elected for his sixth term next Monday without opposition, as the entry list has closed with him unopposed. Mayor Binion has been in office for the past 10 years, running each time after the first without opposition. His board of Aldermen will be Dr. E. H. Hutchings, James L. Powell, J. P. Smith and John A. Gaissert.

In a general discussion of Army production and supply problems, Somervell said at a press conference that the flow of supplies has been very good, "but I don't want to create the impression that we have solved this problem."

"We haven't. There is a terrific job to be done, and it's going to take every ounce of brains and devotion to duty that industry possesses to do it."

"In this connection, there has been a good deal said about labor. I'd like to say a word about the officials of big companies who are out playing golf when we try to get them on the phone. We've got to have the same devotion to duty from these men as management expects from its employees if we are going to put this thing over."

Somervell, a 50-year-old engineer who commands all the Army's supply transportation, construction, communications, medical and administration services, said ocean shipping "is going to be the bottleneck of our whole war effort."

Rail shipments so far have moved with a speed and efficiency "that was never even approached in the last war," he said, "and a swell job" of co-operation by the War Shipping Administration and the Maritime Commission with the services of supply have kept Army shipments moving overseas.

Announcing the creation of special port agencies at all major United States seaports to coordinate and expedite overseas shipment of military supplies, Somervell said that so far there had been "no general situation" of railroad carload shipments accumulating at ports for lack of bottoms.

"There were one or two incipient situations, at New York and Philadelphia, that were nipped in the bud," he said.

While the availability of ships for overseas transport was the limiting factor in the Army's transportation problem, Somervell said his staff was alert to the possible development of difficulties next fall when the peak of production and military movements would throw a tremendous burden on the railroads.

APPROVED BY THE BOSS—LeRoy Polk last year marched down to his favorite men's store and bought him a straw hat without so much as a mention to Mrs. Polk. He felt her consent was not necessary as he had exercised great caution in making comments about her hats. Mrs. Polk withheld remarks, also, but yesterday, she accompanied Mr. Polk to be sure his selection this year was not the same as last year's. Mr. Polk is now ready for Straw Hat Day, which is today.

How Hitler Big Expansion Used Cartels Is Listed in To Arm Bared Cancer Report

German-Born Patent Expert Reveals Nazi Policy.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP) A German-born patent expert told the Senate Patents Committee today that Adolf Hitler made use of international cartels or trade agreements to arm the Reich for war.

"Under the Hitler government," testified Heinrich Kronstein, a Justice Department aide, "the cartel organizations have been transformed entirely. The entire German economy was devoted to a single new aim—preparing for the rearmament program between March 5, 1933, and March 16, 1935, and completing the final rearmament between March 16, 1935, and September 1, 1938."

A trade device thus was transformed into a political weapon, he said. Previously, Kronstein described how cartels had been formed in many industries, striding across international boundaries to allocate sales territories and hold down or stifle competition. Patent laws, he said, were an important adjunct to the development of such international business understandings.

With the rise of Hitler, Kronstein said, Germany got a new, single aim—rearmament. The cartels were called upon to distribute among available plants the necessary rearmament work, and to induce the various cartel members to enlarge their plants for war production.

Germany's restrictive financial laws and decrees, Kronstein said, worked to the harsh disadvantage of American patent owners. "Because no assignment of a right located in Germany is recognized in Germany unless approved by the currency authorities," he declared, "the American owner of a German patent can sell or license his patent only after obtaining permission from the German currency authorities. And such permission is granted only if it is considered to be of advantage to the German Reich."

'Independents' Show Gains in March Retailing

28 Per Cent Increase Over February Reported in Atlanta Area.

By SAM CLARKE.

Atlanta retail sales in independent stores during March showed an average increase of 28 per cent over February, C. Parker Persons, regional manager Department of Commerce, announced here yesterday.

Sales in Atlanta for the first quarter of this year were two per cent ahead of last year, while a gain of six per cent was recorded in March, 1942, compared with March, 1941, he said.

Independent retailers in Georgia reported an average increase of three per cent in sales for March, against the same month of 1941.

Retail trading throughout the state in the quarter was four per cent greater than that reported for the similar period a year ago.

Marked Improvement.

The March total for Georgia was 22 per cent higher than that recorded in February, of this year, reflecting the usual seasonal gain in retail sales between these months, Persons said.

Savannah enjoyed a gain in retail volume during March with a 14 per cent rise from a year ago, and sales in Macon were reported up 9 per cent for the same period. Apparel stores registered marked improvement in retail trading for the state in March, the report revealed, led by men's clothing stores with a gain of 74 per cent. As a group, these stores were up 29 per cent from March, 1941.

Independent department stores reported an advance of 16 per cent in sales in the past month over March, 1941, and food store sales were boosted 18 per cent. Hardware stores reported sales up 37 per cent, but furniture stores showed a loss of 6 per cent. Volume of motor vehicle dealers continued off from a year ago, with sales averaging only a quarter of the total reported for March, 1941, when the trend was upward, the Department of Commerce disclosed.

Percentage Increases.

Percentage increases in retail sales in independent stores in Georgia by kinds of business for March, 1942, compared with March, 1941, follows:

Men's clothing and furnishing stores, 74 per cent; hardware stores, 37 per cent; shoe stores, 37 per cent; family stores, 33 per cent; dry good and general merchandise stores, 22 per cent; food group, 18 per cent; department stores, 16 per cent; general stores (with food), 13 per cent; filling stations, 12 per cent; eating and drinking places, 11 per cent; lumber-building materials dealers, 10 per cent; drugstores, 10 per cent; women's ready-to-wear stores, 5 per cent.

Georgia independent dealers reported sales of men's clothing stores for the quarter were 50 per cent ahead of last year; shoe stores boosted volume 38 per cent, and family clothing stores' sales were 26 per cent larger.

Georgia Group, Jones To Confer

A committee of Georgia officials yesterday was named by the governor to meet in Washington May 5, 6, and 7, for a federal-state government conference with Jesse Jones, Secretary of Commerce, and discuss suspension for the duration of the war of state and local legal restrictions which are hampering the war effort.

The Georgia delegation will be composed of W. E. Wilburn, chairman State Highway Board; Preston Rawlins, assistant attorney general for the highway board; Walter McDonald, chairman of the Georgia Public Service Commission; Ben T. Huie, commissioner of labor, and Charlie Bruce, chairman of the industrial board.

Negroes To Get Defense Training

A list of equipment and space necessary for training Negroes to become aircraft workers was approved yesterday by the local advisory committee on vocational training for defense workers.

The proposed training center will be located in Booker T. Washington High school and serve the whole metropolitan area of Atlanta and Fulton county.

The local advisory committee requested school authorities in consultation with the United States Employment Service to work out a program of training in aircraft occupations for Negroes in which there are reasonable opportunities for employment. The proposed school will be in a position to offer training to Negroes referred to it by the employment office.

SITUATION IN HAND—Lieutenant Colonel John D. O'Leary, new head of the U. S. Marines' southern recruiting offices, took over his duties at headquarters here yesterday. He succeeded Lieutenant Colonel O. A. Miller, who retired because of ill health.

Dixie Recruiter For Marines Is Supersalesman

Colonel O'Leary Almost Signs Up Reporter and Photographer.

Lieutenant Colonel John D. O'Leary enlisted in the Marines as a private before World War I. Soon he was a sergeant. Then he went overseas.

Now he's a lieutenant colonel, who really knows what makes the Marines tough enough to get any situation well in hand.

Colonel O'Leary, who came here to take over the southern recruiting offices of the Marines, has plenty of medals on his blouse, but prefers to talk about other matters—you, for instance, if you are eligible for the Marines.

Before the photographer and reporter had been talking to Colonel O'Leary more than a few minutes, they knew he was the super-salesman of the Marine Corps. The photographer is waiting for duty in the Navy, but it looked for a while as if he would have to change his mind. O'Leary and the Marines were beckoning.

The reporter left with enlistment in his mind. He'll be back to see Colonel O'Leary, he said, and the Marines will have another man.

Colonel O'Leary came from Dallas, Texas, where his district led the division for recruiting after Pearl Harbor with an average of 10 a day.

He succeeds Lieutenant Colonel O. A. Miller, who is retiring because of his health.

State's Forest Fire Fighting Record Good

Only Tennessee Had Fewer in March, Report Shows.

Even though the forests of the state have suffered greatly from devastating fires during the past week, the Georgia Forestry Service's record for combating fires is among the best in the south and southwest, figures released yesterday by the United States Forestry Service revealed.

Only Tennessee had fewer fires during March of this year than did Georgia and Georgia's forest fires were confined to a comparatively smaller area.

In the 5,000,000 protected acres of forest land in the state only 491 fires were counted during March. This compares with a total of 1,208 fires in March, 1941. Georgia has approximately 17,000,000 acres of timberland which is unprotected under the county-wide co-operative protection plan.

For the calendar year ending April 1, Georgia ranked third among states having the least number of fires, and the average size of the fires were small in comparison to figures of other states.

The United States report covers Region Eight, which comprises all of the southern states in addition to Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma.

ilities, $150,000,000; personnel training and housing facilities, $100,000,000; hospital and dispensary facilities, $40,500,000; shore radio facilities, $11,000,000; naval research laboratory, $720,000; miscellaneous structures, $25,000,000; floating drydock program, $36,000,000.

This unquestionably is the time when teamwork and unselfish devotion to duty are first in the lives of Americans.

Every day—every hour—our fighting forces call for more weapons, more supplies. For Americans in every walk of life, this means—

- increased food from our farms
- unheard-of production from industry
- unparalleled planning from business
- undreamed-of financing by banks as well as the Government.

The brains, resources and energies of agriculture, industry, business and banking—and our Government—must combine to preserve our way of living.

This is no time for time-wasting haggling. It is time to give unlimited support to the winning of the war.

Care Is Urged In Application Of Sulfa Drugs

Indiscriminate Use Causes Scars, Doctors Told at Augusta.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 29.—(AP) Indiscriminate application of the magical sulfa drugs to every scratch and minor cut may—paradoxically—leave ugly scars, Dr. Ferrin H. Long, professor of preventive medicine at Johns Hopkins University, warned parents today.

"Most home accidents such as a lacerated scalp or a sliced finger," said Dr. Long, "are clean injuries and it is a waste of drugs to apply them to such minor hurts."

"Sulfanilamide is not a substitute for mercurochrome," he added. Dr. Long flew to Augusta from Atlanta today to address the 93d annual session of the Medical Association of Georgia.

"If some of the less-soluble (sulfa) crystals are placed in a wound which is clean," he continued, "and the usual stitches taken to pull the edges of the cut together, the scar often will be much larger and uglier, because the skin will pucker over the undissolved crystals."

Dr. Long, who flew to Pearl Harbor immediately after the Japanese attack to observe the curative powers of the sulfa drug family, said the drugs were enabling wounded personnel of the armed forces to recover much more rapidly than fighters in other wars.

"Take the average 100 war casualties," said Dr. Long, "and there will be about 15 dead, 45 hurt badly enough to be litter cases and about 45 walking patients."

"If sulfanilamide or one of the sulfa derivatives is placed in the wounds before they get infected, no infection will occur." However, the physician added, "even if advanced infection is in a wound, the application of the sulfa compounds will cause an enormous speed-up in the rate of recovery."

At tonight's session, Dr. Frank H. Lahey, of Boston, president of the American Medical Association, spoke to the convention on medical problems.

5,000,000 Troops Seen In New Nazi Offensive

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 29.—(AP)—Information gathered in Bucharest diplomatic circles by a neutral diplomat indicated today that the Axis plans to hurl about 280 divisions—perhaps 5,000,000 men—against the Russians when Hitler's new offensive begins.

It is believed among Allied quarters here that the long winter and the Russian harrying tactics may have delayed until after June 1 an offensive which Hitler originally had planned to start not later than May 1.

Family That Knows Its Names Selects a New One for Itself

By LAMAR BALL.
Old residents of Atlanta would hardly know the Gottsmans, of Elkhorn drive, today—they're the Garsons now, facing the future equably with the blessings of the Fulton superior court.

Frank Garson, nee Gottsman, explained all the change yesterday: "I have two sons—Dan, 21, and Arthur, 28. Both have been in the Army for quite some time. We, the family, decided to make the change since our sons in the Army preferred not to serve under a name so Germanlike."

The Gottsmans had been known far and wide over Atlanta for their gift for appropriate names. They founded, own and control the Lovable Brassiere Company, an institution that startled passers-by on Spring street several years ago.

"Arthur picked that name," said the father last night. "Arthur always had a gift for nomenclature. We pondered the problem a long time. We worried. But Arthur insisted and the Lovable brassiere has swept the country like a storm."

Arthur Garson, nee Gottsman, was once the talk of Atlanta. He was a child prodigy of no slight achievements.

Worried Psychologists.
He emerged from Formwalt school at the age of eight and when he was 10 he was given a diploma and was graduated from high school. Psychologists were worried. They gave Arthur an I. Q. test designed for high school seniors and he rated the highest mark in the United States. At the age of 10, Arthur entered Oglethorpe University and at the age of 14, he stood on the platform in a child's size cap and gown and was given a regular A. B. degree. The studies out at Oglethorpe had been so simple for Arthur that he employed his spare time in the afternoons working as a featured, by-line artist for the old Atlanta Georgian.

Since his graduation from Oglethorpe, Arthur spent two and a half years at the Georgia Evening College, where he organized the ngw-flourishing debating society of that institution.

Opened Branch.
When he was 21, he decided to go to New York City.

"He wanted me to let him open a branch of our business up there," explained Garson last night.

"I argued against a boy so young going to live in New York, but he explained he wanted to do some more studying at New York University. So, he went ahead and opened the branch at 358 Fifth avenue, made a success of the business and came out of N. Y. U. with a Ph. D."

A few years ago Arthur enlisted in the reserve corps of the Army. In a little while he was a second lieutenant and today he is a first lieutenant in the Quartermaster Corps at San Diego, Cal. He was one of the soldiers who helped evacuate the Japanese from the west coast.

Nothing Unusual.
"There's nothing unusual about Dan," said the father. He went to Duke University and was very good at mathematics, but the only extraordinary achievement he has shown so far is an ability to play golf.

"Our only daughter, Joy, 17 years old, is attending Larson Junior College, at New Haven, Conn."

No one is at home today but Mr. and Mrs. Garson.

Arthur's qualities of a prodigy started his family when he was an infant. When he was less than a year old he was given blocks. His mother and father read to him. Soon he was spelling out words with the blocks, and at the age of two he could read and write.

"He never wanted the ordinary toys of childhood," said his father. "He wanted books."

"He always had his way." "That's why we changed our name. He insisted it should be Garson, instead of Gottsman, so Garson it is, by a court order."

Masons Install J. W. Riley as High Priest

Royal Arch Group Holds 120th Annual Session in Macon.

MACON, Ga., April 29.—(AP)—John W. Riley, of Milledgeville, today took office as grand high priest of the Royal Arch Masons of Georgia at the 120th annual convention of the grand chapter here, succeeding J. Warner Neal, of Columbus.

All officers were automatically moved up. Frank B. Willingham, of Forsyth, was guest speaker at a luncheon this afternoon. Later, John Russell, of Fitzgerald, was installed as grand master at the grand council, Royal and Select Masters, succeeding J. O. Smith, of Bainbridge. Cuba Grants Recognition To Free French

Five Territories Given De Facto Rating by Island Capital.

HAVANA, Cuba, April 29.—(AP) Cuba granted de facto recognition today of Free French control over five French territories and said its government would deal with them exclusively through the Free French government headquarters in London.

The five territories are the Pacific islands of the Tahiti group, New Hebrides and New Caledonia and the territories of Equatorial Africa and the Cameroons.

Cuba maintains official relations with the Vichy French government, but a statement issued by Dr. Jose M. Cortina, minister of state, said this government has taken into consideration the "de facto situation in which certain French territories are under absolute jurisdiction of the national French committee established in London, the representative of the Free French."

The Cuban government is at war with Germany and Italy, having entered the conflict last December 11.

Alumni Flay Medical Body In Rating Row

Convention at Augusta 'Condemns' Dropping of University.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 29.—(AP) A resolution "condemning" the American Medical Association for dropping the University of Georgia School of Medicine from the list of accredited medical schools was adopted by alumni of the school tonight during their annual meeting and banquet at the Medical Association of Georgia convention.

Emergency alumni endorsed the action of the Georgia graduates. The resolution, urging the action of the AMA be rescinded, will be brought before the association's legislative body, the house of delegates, Friday morning. Action taken by this body will be the official voice of the association.

Spokesmen of a special Georgia alumni committee said the sole aim of the resolution was to see the medical school regain the academic standing it deserves. The University School of Medicine fulfills all requirements of the AMA, and its standing should be restored on the basis of merit, the committeemen added.

"A gross injustice has been done," alumni spokesmen asserted. No political inference was placed in the resolution, the alumni committee revealed.

"Our argument is purely with the AMA, and it is not our place to get mixed up with any political issues," its statement said.

Dr. Frank H. Lahey, of Boston, president of the AMA, addressed members of the association on the procurement and selection of physicians for duty with the armed forces.

"We are not getting enough doctors to meet the needs of the armed forces," Dr. Lahey declared.

Of the 176,000 physicians in the country today, 50,000 may be called to service, he said. At least 7,500 must be recruited within the next two months, he added.

Hancock Ministers Honor Confederates

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

SPARTA, Ga., April 29.—An unusual observance of Confederate Memorial day was held all over Hancock county Sunday instead of the usual address here in the courthouse or school auditorium. As the date fell on Sunday, Mrs. George L. Brown, president of the Hancock U. D. C. chapter, requested each minister to make fitting reference to the day in his sermon. This was done by the pastors of all denominations and the churches were decorated in flowers representing the "Stars and Bars."

Since the organization of Hancock Memorial Association just after the War Between the States, Memorial Day has been observed with a southern orator making a stirring address. The U. D. C. will likely revive this custom next year. The graves of all Confederate soldiers were decorated with flowers, according to the age-old custom, by the Daughters, assisted by girls.

New U. S. Ships Will Top All Britain Had Before War

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
CHICAGO, April 29.—Admiral Howard L. Vickery, of the United States Maritime Commission, promised today that 23,000,000 tons of new merchant shipping would be delivered to the nation by the end of 1943.

"That is more shipping than England had in her whole fleet before the beginning of this war," he said in an address delivered at the 30th annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. "And it is about half the amount of shipping that the whole world had at the beginning of this war."

Admiral Vickery reported the 45 yards building Maritime Commission ships already were launching more than two vessels a day, but he weighted his glowing production figures with a solemn word of warning.

2-Way Problem.

"I would be fooling you," he said, "if I tried to tell you we can build ships as fast as we can lose them. It can't be done. A ship can be sunk in five minutes, and a ship cannot be built in much less than 80 days.

"Therefore, the problem of shipping is a two-way problem. We must protect our shipping as well as build our shipping. Neither one of them is the complete answer, but with both together I believe we will be on top of this situation and before the end of this year our shipping problem will be well in hand."

The Maritime Commission's report was part of a special session conducted by the Chamber of Commerce to present a picture of the progress being made by American war industries. He said the country could expect 8,000,000 tons of merchant shipping this year and 15,000,000 tons in 1943.

"Now the capacity of this country to produce shipping at the present time is not the capacity of your shipbuilding plants," Admiral Vickery explained. "The big bottleneck is steel. Any time I am short 2,500 tons of steel in any month, you are going to be short one ship five months later."

Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, told members of the chamber that business and government must apply three remedies to keep the nation's railroads a healthy economic factor.

"One is more cars and locomotives," he said. "Another is to make better use of those which now exist. The third is to reduce the work to be done by curtailing traffic."

He said so far the carriers had been able to meet the increasing demands upon them, but ahead lay a path "beset with trouble."

Tidings Warning. Eastman added railroad loading and unloading times must be reduced, and that by "voluntary efforts or otherwise" it was imperative that box car loadings be increased so that more of their capacity was put in use.

Another speaker before the chamber today was Senator Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, who warned delegates that they would have to sacrifice a lot to win the war.

"We shall give up freedom of speech to a measure," he said, "we shall give up freedom of action to a measure; we shall submit to censorship; we shall submit to rationing . . . that is inevitable. "But for my part I shall give them up gladly and try to abide by whatever the rule that is given out for our conduct and our lives. But I shall only give them up temporarily. I want every one of them back the very first moment when circumstances will permit."

WHEN RATIONING COMES. MACON, Ga., April 29.—(AP)—Jack Tarker, Macon News columnist, says the county's only hope seems to lie in the secret knowledge of high school students.

"We've never seen them buy over two gallons of gas at a clip yet," he says, "but they always seem to get there."

TIRE MAN—John L. Collyer, president of B. F. Goodrich Company, urged increased conservation of tires as the chief hope of the motoring public during a visit here yesterday.

Improvement Said Needed In Tire Saving

John L. Collyer, Goodrich Head, Hits 'Spotty' Conservation.

Synthetic rubber, the white hope of the motoring public, has responded favorably to tests made during the last two years and there is a good chance that "American ingenuity will find a way to keep wheels turning," John L. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich Company, said yesterday.

The hope that synthetic rubber may be the answer to transportation problems which the tire shortage is forcing on the American public was accompanied by a warning from the official that conservation which up to now has been "spotty" must be improved.

Hates to Criticize. "I don't like to take the position of criticizing the conservation efforts already made, but at the same time I feel that they could be improved," the tall, quiet-voiced executive said. "With conservation as the watchword, it is my personal conviction that cars will not be commandeered by the government."

Collyer, who became president of the Goodrich company in 1939, said in June, 1940, his company announced the sale of synthetic rubber tires, first as a "challenge to scientists, and second, to focus the attention of the government and the public on the fact that a rubber shortage existed."

The synthetic rubber tires were subjected to tests by more than 200 of the country's leading business firms who bought them at a price 30 per cent higher than that of real rubber and with no guarantee. The results of the tests up to now show that tires, in which synthetic rubber replaces the natural stuff by 80 per cent, give better than 90 per cent the mileage of the regular rubber tire.

Troubled Germans. Collyer admitted the Germans had trouble with synthetic rubber tires in their Russian campaign and added with a laugh, "A lot of things went wrong for the Germans there."

Seriously, he added, there are different kinds of synthetic rubber and indicated that another kind would have stood up better in the Russian cold.

OCD Rules Now Similar To the Army

Civil Air Patrol Also Given Official Status by Landis.

National orders placing civilian defense under regulations similar to the Army's were issued here yesterday by Dean James M. Landis, director of the Office of Civilian Defense.

His announcement also gave official status to the Civil Air Patrol and the Citizens Defense Corps.

Dean Landis said the orders, which also created a new Citizens' Service Corps for recognition of certain persons not enrolled in war services, were to prescribe standards for training and eligibility.

Gist of Orders.

The essence of the orders accomplished the following:

1. Give official status to the Citizens Defense Corps for the first time, prescribe standards of eligibility and training for membership and provide that no person who is not a member may wear the official insignia or receive or use federal protective equipment to be issued by the OCD.

2. Create a new United States Citizens Service Corps for official recognition of volunteers who have completed 10 hours of work in such activities as conservation, war bond sales, salvage, education, health, consumers services, etc., or for those who have completed certain prescribed training courses in volunteer war activities other than the protective services.

Special Insignia.

3. Make official provision for special insignia which will permit doctors, nurses, newspaper reporters and photographers, members of the clergy, undertakers and others to carry on essential services or duties during a blackout or air raid.

4. Give official federal status to the Civil Air Patrol. Landis made it clear that war workers in the protective services would not be entitled to wear the official insignia nor would they be permitted to receive protective equipment unless they complied with basic standards of training.

The new United States Citizens Service Corps organized for the first time men and women of all ages who volunteered under their local defense councils for work outside the protective services and who met certain prescribed standards of qualifications, training and work. This corps will be supervised nationally by the civilian mobilization branch of the OCD.

worn rubber in America and with concentration on a conservation program, driving a car only two-thirds as much as formerly and then at a speed limit of 30 miles in the city and 40 in the country, this country can look for the present supply of tires to be "stretched out two and a half years," Collyer said.

Next Step Unknown. As for the prospect of the government taking over unused tires which many citizens have on hand, Collyer said, "If the conservation program doesn't bring in sufficient scrap rubber to keep the reclamation plants going, we can't say what the next step will be."

Collyer flew here from Akron yesterday and planned to go on to the company's plant in south Georgia last night. He conferred with the local Goodrich representatives during the morning and had lunch with a group of nine executives at the Atlanta Athletic Club. The executive expects to visit the Goodrich plant in Louisville before returning to Akron.

Knoxville, Ga., Fire To Be Investigated

Investigation of a fire in the Knoxville, Ga., jail in which a convicted murderer was being held will be made, Royal K. Mann, head of the State Prison and Parole Commission, said yesterday.

The prisoner, J. E. Wade Jr., who, Mann said, is under life sentence for the slaying of Rufus Dent, of Robertsville, was burned about the face and fingers. Sheriff L. R. O'Neal, of Crawford county, said the fire was discovered early Tuesday morning by a youth living near by, who called him. Sheriff O'Neal quoted Wade as saying that unidentified men entered the jail, poured gasoline on the bedding in the cell and set fire to it.

Wade was removed to the Macon hospital and later placed in the Bibb county jail.

Dixie Egg Growers Boost Production

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 29.—The Farm Security Administration asserted today that its small-farmer clients in the south-east had jumped egg production from a negligible number a year ago, when they sold in half-dozen lots to peddlers and "rolling stores," to 6,000,000 a week.

ESA specialists estimated 56,000 small farmers co-operating with the program in Alabama, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina now are getting an average of more than 800,000 eggs a day from chickens raised in the "food-for-defense" program initiated last spring.

At an average of only 23 cents a dozen, they said this means $15,000 in food for home use and in cash sales daily.

TREASURER'S REPORT. McDONOUGH, Ga., April 29.—The quarterly report of the Henry county treasurer, Lesley Hand, shows a balance of $41,638.75. Total receipts during the first quarter were $44,329.69, and expenditures were $37,060.34. The balance carried forward from the previous year was $34,369.40.

GETTING READY FOR BOMBERS—Leaders in civilian defense were talking ways and means to handle air raids yesterday at a meeting addressed by Dean James M. Landis, national director of OCD. Left to right are Charles Murchison, OCD regional director; Robert H. Troutman, state civilian defense head; George M. (Pup) Phillips, director of the metropolitan area, and Landis.

William Grant Named Head Of Bar Group

Atlanta Lawyers Hear Talk by Dean Landis.

William G. Grant last night was elected president of the Atlanta Bar Association at a brief business session prior to an address by Dean James M. Landis, national director of civilian defense, and former dean of the Harvard Law School.

Harlee Branch Jr., was named vice president and president elect, while other officers named were Bruce Woodruff, second vice president, and Robert Wiggins Jr., vice president representing lawyers who have not practiced five years. Lieutenant (J. G.) Hamilton Loke, now on duty with the Navy here, was chosen to represent the Atlanta association on the Georgia Board of Governors.

The executive committee is composed of F. M. Bird, retiring president; Lieutenant Henry F. Bowden, Allen Post, Thomas B. Branch Jr., Grover Middlebrooks, Grant, Harlee Branch and Woodruff.

Dean Landis outlined duties during the war, stressing the fact that they should provide legal services for men in service for the protection of their homes and other interests.

Alimony Suits Show Increase

The war has had little effect on the number of divorces in Fulton county, according to the report of the domestic relations court for two-month term ended yesterday issued by Clerk J. H. Bush.

Bush, however, observed an upward trend in the number of suits for temporary alimony, which he thinks may be attributed to the fact that husbands are earning more money, due to war industries.

During the term, he reported that 126 couples won final decrees and that 252 couples were given first verdicts.

In March and April, according to the Fulton marriage license bureau, 687 couples obtained licenses to wed.

ARMY PROMOTIONS.

MONTZUMA, Ga., April 29.—Two Montzuma boys have received their first Army promotion. William C. Brown, of Fort Benning, the son of Mrs. Mannie O. Brown, and Fred A. Tyson, of Camp Gordon, son of Mrs. S. H. Tyson, have both been promoted from privates to privates first class.

PRINCIPAL ELECTED.

VIDALIA, Ga., April 29.—Professor Emory L. Herring has been elected principal of the Lowery Consolidated school, in Laurens county, it was learned today at this place, where Mr. Herring makes his home when not teaching.

Landis Warns Atlanta

what might be called 'token raids.' They are not what many persons believe. The words simply mean that the bombing was sporadic and not continuous.

"If you get killed in a 'token raid' you're just as dead as you would be in any other type."

Landis compared civilian defense to Stonewall Jackson's tactics. Tracing the battle near Richmond, Landis told how Jackson's troops moved up the valley, causing the enemy to rush back to the defense of Washington. "Those tactics won that battle," Landis said. "We've got to keep that from happening. We must be able to handle the enemy when he comes. We cannot call back men from overseas to defend the home front."

Orders Working. Atlanta probably never will need gas masks, Landis said, adding that the great amount of concentration necessary for success and the fact that the enemy prefers to knock out vital plants rather than personnel should take care of that phase.

In answering questions on equipment, Landis pointed out that orders are on hand now, but "when we will be able to distribute the fire hose, pumps, helmets and other necessary equipment still is not known."

He said that the west coast was getting as much as possible now, and that Atlanta would receive its supplies just as soon as needs in areas more likely to need it first had been accommodated.

Vast Difference. Precision bombing at vital war plants is most feared by Landis. He cited the fact that blackouts make aerial bombing the only alternative and "there is a vast difference in precision and aerial bombing."

"When the attacks come, Atlanta and other cities can expect incendiaries and high explosive bombs," Landis said. "The chances of a gas attack are small, because, as I said before, the enemy is not interested in bombing personnel, but plants. They might hit some personnel in aerial bombing, but we can stand that loss. If the blackout isn't perfect, precision bombing will allow the enemy to hit the plants."

Landis spoke to the Atlanta Bar Association last night. He will speak today at the regional OCD conference.

Among the speakers will be Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward, of Washington, who is in charge of plant protection; Charles Murchison, OCD regional director; Major General William Bryden, commanding officer of the Fourth Corps Area; Major George Noland, regional Civil Air Patrol director; W. T. French, of Washington, allocation of equipment; Jonathan Daniels, civilian mobilization head; W. W. Jefferson, of the American Red Cross, and other leaders, including heads of the interceptor commands for the First and Third Areas.

Negroes Anxious To Help Win War
Negroes comprise 36 per cent of Georgia's population, but they want to contribute "50 per cent to winning this war," Dr. J. W. Holley, of Albany, asserted yesterday.

Called on for remarks at a state citizens' defense meeting, the director of Negro defense efforts in Georgia declared "the Negro's democracy hangs on the fate of the white man's democracy and we know it."

He said "they say the Negro has never had as much democracy as the white man, and maybe he hasn't, but the 13,000,000 Negroes in this country have more democracy than any 13,000,000 anywhere else in the whole world."

Holley said 80,000 of his race were registered for defense work in Georgia to date, adding that some 30,000 Negro farmers would produce a large amount of food for civilian and military populations.

Non-English Press Not To Be Suppressed

Biddle Says Loyal Papers Have Nothing To Fear.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP) Attorney General Biddle has advised Representative Weiss, Democrat, Pennsylvania, that the Justice Department has no intention of suppressing foreign language newspapers as such and that "those loyal to the United States have nothing to fear from the government."

Biddle's view was expressed in a telegram to the Pittsburgh congressman after Weiss had telegraphed the attorney general that many advertisers were discontinuing use of foreign language papers because of fear of indiscriminate suppression.

While assuring Weiss that the department's policy was not to suppress the non-English press, "appropriate action against seditious newspapers will be taken, regardless of the language in which they are printed."

Crops Suffering From Lack of Rain

Lack of rain is beginning to interfere with germination of seeds and growth of young plants on Georgia farms, the weather bureau said in its weekly report.

There has been no rainfall anywhere in the state so far this week and temperatures averaged well above normal. Cotton is making good stands in southern and central areas but has been retarded somewhat by dryness in the soil. Corn, wheat and oat crops were reported in good condition. About half of the tobacco planting has been completed.

Peanut planting proceeded with considerably more yet to plant. The crop is in need of rain but plants are coming up in good condition.

Air Unit Patrolling California Forests

Civil Air Patrol planes have been called out to patrol the forests in California, Dean James M. Landis, national director of civilian defense, said here yesterday after a long-distance telephone conversation with San Francisco.

The Georgia unit of the Civil Air Patrol, commanded by Winship Nunnally, did patrol duty for the United States Forest Service during last week's blazes in Georgia and North Carolina.

ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 30, 1942.

The American Way

Students at various units of the University System of Georgia are enlisting in preparation for the coming campaign to nominate a new governor for Georgia. Quietly, without pressure or fanfare, students at the University in Athens, at Georgia Tech and other state institutions of higher learning, who are old enough, are being asked to vote to free their alma maters from the taint of politics.

Everyone knows how, last fall, through subterfuge and trickery, a political governor succeeded in packing the Board of Regents until it obeyed his behest. Everyone knows how, at hearings which were farcical burlesques of justice, educators were pilloried and forced from their posts.

As a result of this injection of the basest sort of politics into the educational system of the state, the University and its branches have been temporarily suspended by the national groups which set the standards for the colleges of the nation. For the time being, at least, the University of Georgia is not recognized as meeting those standards. Only because of the political interference in its affairs by the governor.

The way to remedy evils, the American way, is through the polls. The students are complying, fully, with that American way. In dignified manner they are organizing and making themselves eligible to cast their ballots against the man who has violated the scholastic integrity of their alma mater.

By their actions, the students set example to all Georgia. They point the way and good Georgians will follow. That way is to register, now. The deadline for registration to vote, in the fall elections is May 2, Saturday. Then go to the polls and vote as conscience dictates and as reason tells is for the best good of the state.

That which has been done to Georgia's grand old university is enough to arouse the fighting spirit of all good men. But the way we fight in America, on internal questions, is by ballots. We will continue to follow that American way.

—VICTORY IS WORTH OUR ALL—

Just as Expected

The war record achieved by Canada, our friendly neighbor to the north, left no room for doubt as to the outcome of the plebiscite held in the Dominion on Monday.

The question decided by the voters was whether the Canadian government should be given a free hand to send drafted soldiers out of the country, to fight anywhere in the world. The result was overwhelmingly in favor of granting such provision.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King had promised, long ago, that drafted men would be used for domestic service only and none but volunteers be sent abroad. He asked to be relieved from this promise in the plebiscite.

Canada has sent many troops to fight against the Axis. Her men have achieved magnificent records wherever they have had opportunity to serve in battle. Canada has created a war production plant so large and effective that she is not only supplying her own forces, but exporting great quantities of war supplies to others of the Allied Nations. Some of the output of her war plants comes even to the United States.

It was, therefore, but to be expected that the vote to send drafted men overseas should be overwhelming. Only in the French-Canadian province of Quebec was a local majority given the negative side. There are peculiar local conditions there which account for this illogical attitude. It was the same in the first World War, when anti-draft demonstrations in some Quebec towns assumed almost the proportions of riots.

But Canada, as a whole, now stands shoulder to shoulder with Britain, with the United States and all the Allied Nations, ready to fight the enemy wherever and whenever he may be found until the power of the evil Axis is forever crushed.

Gas Rationing

On May 12, 13 and 14, citizens of the 17 eastern states and the District of Columbia, affected by the gasoline rationing regulations of the OPA, will register at the public schools. The amount of gasoline each auto operator will be allowed has not yet been definitely decided. That some degree of rationing will go into effect soon after the registration is complete is certain.

The eastern states have been those hardest hit by the submarine sinkings of tankers off our coast. It is a shortage of transportation facilities, rather than any actual shortage of the motor fuel that renders rationing necessary. That shortage of transportation is, of course, coupled with the heavy demands of the armed forces for gasoline.

It is planned to issue an order, through the Office of Defense Transportation, to control tank car movements all over the nation. At the same time, prior to issuance of such an order, regions with adequate supplies of petroleum products are being asked to release tank cars, barges and other facilities to ease the shortage where it exists.

There can be only one answer to the gasoline problem. That is nation-wide control of distribution of the available supplies and nation-wide rationing, on equal basis, to divide those supplies equitably among all.

Meanwhile loyal Americans in the affected eastern states, which go under the rationing system first, will accept any inconvenience involved cheerfully and will not seek any undue, selfish advantage local conditions seek to warrant.

The ultimate objective is equal treatment for all. We can ask no more.

The Nazi Way

If there still is any doubt in the mind of any person on the facts of life in the present struggle against the Nazis, further revelation must have come in the news from Stockholm relative to the 500 Norwegian schoolteachers who were jammed below decks on a small steamer designed to hold half that number and were shipped to a Nazi work camp in the Arctic zone under circumstances so bad that some of the teachers became insane.

And why? In answer to protests from clergymen and even members of his own party, Quisling, the man responsible for this inhumanity, said: "These teachers are guilty of criminal offenses. Clergymen should try to persuade them to come to their right minds." And what were the "criminal offenses"? You can rest assured the offense was nothing more than a protest against Quisling and his cut-throats.

Here again is another example of how the Nazis operate. Here again is further proof this enemy we are fighting must be utterly and completely defeated. Here again is evidence that the Nazis are brutal, inhuman monsters who must be destroyed. Here again is more emphasis to the truth that today, more than ever before, we are our brother's keeper and the death of a Norwegian schoolteacher in Norway thousands of miles away is our business.

THIS WAY OUT

(From The White County News.) Add the war profiteer to your list of vanishing Americans. Like the little dog in the song a few years ago, he's heading for his last roundup. In spite of a few sensational stories about excessive profits from war contracts, the fact remains that the great majority of companies here in America are working overtime for victory without getting exorbitant returns. Some of them have been able to cut the cost of their contracts below the original figure and have turned back part of their profits voluntarily to the government.

For the great majority of companies, however, the profit margin is much narrower than most people realize. In the decade from 1931 to 1940 the average annual profit on gross income in the manufacturing industries was 1.5 per cent, as against 4.4 per cent in the decade from 1921 to 1930. While war production greatly stimulated industrial activity and increased earnings of manufacturing companies, almost all the gains were drained off in taxes. Although earnings before taxes may rise this year and next, corporation taxes will also rise. Data available on 1940 and 1941 incomes indicate that the peak of profits for the war production period was reached in 1941, and profits are now declining.

Facts like these indicate that industry is not holding up production to get big money. It's determined to do its war job fairly and honestly. It wants legislation that will eliminate unfair profit.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WHY INTERNED? WASHINGTON, April 29.—Some sort of public misconception has arisen in connection with the internment by one of our bomber crews which landed in Siberia after the recent air raid on Japanese cities.

Presumably the bomber's original objective was China, but lost its bearings and was forced down in Russia. Despite the fact that Russia and the United States are common allies in the war against the other two Axis partners, Germany and Italy, the plane was interned under international law for the reason that Russia and Japan are at peace.

It is one of those incongruous situations that turns more on expediency than the strict legalities involved.

But the confusing factors in the public mind revolve around other things. The public, large segments of it, has been unable to understand why Russia, with all of the lease-lend aid we are rendering them, should intern one of our plane crews after a bombing expedition against one of our prime enemies, Japan. But for collateral circumstances of high military importance the seizure wouldn't make sense. It might be a provocative cause for curtailing our Russian aid efforts.

The reality of the situation—the expediency involved—turns on a different set of equations: Russia is in the throes of a life-and-death struggle with Germany. She needs all of her man power and reserves to stem the tide of Nazi aggression on the western European front. If she is compelled to fight a war with Japan at the same time at her Siberian rear, her chances of success on the other front are seriously jeopardized.

MUST LEAN BACKWARDS Consequently, Russia, while as contemptuous of the treacherous and ambitious little Japs as we are, must lean backward to avoid precipitating any further clash that would command the attention of troops she can ill afford to spare. So long as there is peace between Moscow and Tokyo, the Soviet must follow all the concepts of international law. The law requires that enemy planes be interned under the circumstances.

What Russia is trying to do, of course, is to avoid any development that would give rise to a Japanese attack in Siberia. Many people think the attack will come sooner or later, anyway. Possibly it is just a matter of time before Japan places the fruits of her other Pacific conquests in order, enabling her to strike the blow. The Russians are not unmindful of the situation. They have a great force quartered in the Siberian area adjacent to the Japanese-occupied regions of Manchuria. At present these forces neutralize each other. Tomorrow they may be engaged in active combat.

But the point of it all is that the Russians have their hands so completely full on the European front that they would be foolhardy to invite opposition from another quarter.

JAPS, LIKEWISE, BUSY The Japs probably feel the very same way about it at the moment.

except for whatever pressure influences they may emanate from Berlin. They have had their hands full conquering the Philippines, Malaya, Singapore and the Dutch East Indies. They cannot afford to overextend themselves. Nevertheless, they are so conscious of the potentialities of the Russian situation that they have felt compelled to maintain a force estimated by M. Litvinov, the Russian ambassador to the United States, of upwards of 700,000 men on the Manchurian-Siberian frontier.

Once Hitler launches his promised spring offensive against Russia, we may expect the greatest kind of pressure from Nazi sources to force Japan into action in Siberia. It will be difficult enough for the Japs to resist this pressure under any circumstances. Why should Russia, who has her hands full, do anything to aggravate the Japs?

NO WASHINGTON PROTESTS President Roosevelt and the war administration in Washington understand the situation fully. There have been no protests from the State Department to Moscow against the internment action taken. There will be none. The closest understanding exists between Russia and the United States. If one of our planes on the Tokyo bombing mission happened to get lost and find it necessary to come down on Russian soil, then it is much better this way than it would have been if they had been compelled to land in Japanese-occupied Manchuria. It does not matter to us what the Russians find expedient to do with the plane and crew. They are on our side spiritually, and will be so, as regards the Japs, physically as soon as expediency permits. There is no occasion for public confusion.

Aftermath Of Carefree Living.

It is a fortunate thing the United States Treasury Department has set the monthly quotas for purchases of War Bonds on a sliding scale. The quotas increase for each month.

Because there are a lot of folks, I happen to know, who are striving as hard as they can to set their financial houses in order so as to be able to devote all their income to buying bonds, but who can't do much about it for several months yet. They've got to pay old debts, contracted before the carefree days before December 7, when "most everybody lived right up to his income or a little beyond."

You can't buy bonds, you know, with money that has to meet the obligations on that old debt. It's made at the bank, or to meet that FHA mortgage on the improvements you put on the old home a year ago. Or to pay for the car which still has quite a few months' payments to be met.

The question of which comes first, debts or bonds, isn't in your hands to decide. Just fail to pay your debts and see how quickly the folks you owe will foreclose on that mortgage. Or hire a lawyer to write painful letters and, possibly, drag you into court at last resort.

If we can just gain sufficient time to pay off a few of these obligations we'll buy so many bonds, Mister Morgenthau, you'll be surprised. But if you want us to buy them, you've got to let us have time to pay off a few of these obligations, or other debts.

How To Live on $25,000 a Year?

It's going to be tough on some folks to get by on that maximum income of $25,000 a year sought by the President. For the same reason, outlined above, it's tough for "most all of us to buy the war bonds we should."

For I imagine the man with an income of $50,000 a year, or more, has undertaken obligations, in good faith, that he can very well meet if his income is cut in half. How about the lease on that expensive home he occupies in New York, for instance, paying $25,000 or more in annual rent? Is the landlord going to smile and let him forget the five-year lease? And how about the big summer home, employing a score or so of servants? He can't sell it—no one with a mere $25,000 per annum could afford to buy it and I suppose all the hired hands will be out of work, looking for jobs in defense factories, perhaps. This social order of ours is a complicated thing, with an interlocking financial structure that links everyone to everyone else. And it will take some little time for the big money man to adjust his affairs to a mere $25,000 income. Just as it will take the little fellow some time to pay off sufficient installments on the washing machine, the car and the new living room furniture to give him a 10 per cent gap between income and outgo, in order to buy a few War Bonds.

Who To Send To. Charming Atlanta lady read that letter, on the front page of the Constitution of last Sunday. Addressed to "Dear Buddy" and supposed to be cut out and mailed to some young friend or member of the family now in army, navy or marine corps.

"I haven't a member of my family in any of the services," she bemoaned. "I really don't know any boys in the army to whom I could send the letter. What shall I do? Oh, I know someone in the armed services. I'll cut it out and mail it to Commander Jesse Draper."

Which solved one charming creature's problem for the moment.

Disappointed Fighting Men.

I know some fighting men who are terribly disappointed and disgusted with the actions of the army commanders in this war.

First, a regular army fellow, a lieutenant-colonel. He was a tearin', rip-snorin' fighter in the last war. And his idea now is to do some more learnin' and rip-snorin' among Japs and Germans. Of course, one eye is kinder bad, and he's not so slim as he used to be. Still and all, to make him nothing but a blankety-blank officer of Military Police at an inland American city—it's outrageous. I know a kid who has been driving 5-ton trucks for his dad, a big trucking contractor, ever since he was 14 years of age. He loves to drive a truck. What's he been doing since he was drafted five months ago? Kitchen police, that's all. That is absurd, isn't it? When his outfit is short of truck drivers, too.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Source Of Idea NEW YORK, April 29. Officially, it was the President who proposed to congress that no person be allowed to receive a net income, after taxes are paid, of more than $25,000 a year, but, in actual fact, I think the country may thank the United Automobile Workers of the CIO for the revolutionary suggestion of a top limit on the price of every American's ability and ingenuity. This is a fine organization, composed largely of captive workers brought in by armed thugs, which fostered the strike at North American Aviation in loyalty to Mother Russia to prevent the construction of planes for this country and Britain when Stalin and Hitler were yet allies. The limitation would apply to all incomes, even if derived from activities utterly apart from the war program or its industries. It is not confined to war profiteers.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who protests rather angrily that she is a private person and not a political force, also had a part in the play. On April 9, Mrs. R. wrote in her private, non-political column:

"I listened to a news commentator this morning who gave such a gloomy picture of the future and of the leaders in every field in this country that I wonder whether the effect would not be to discourage people. Just to give the gentleman a ray of hope as to the good intentions of some people I would like to draw his attention to an item in the newspaper wires on April 7."

"The executive board of the UAW—CIO proposed today a legal limit of $25,000 a year on family and individual incomes for the war's duration, in return for which union workers would accept non-negotiable bonds in lieu of all overtime pay for more than 40 hours a week."

"The gentleman said there was no selfishness left in any of us. I am not going to contend that this suggestion is entirely unselfish, but at least it is a constructive suggestion showing that someone is doing some thinking. It gives me hope that there may be others who are not as totally devoid of altruism as this news commentator seems to feel."

Union Plan Presented Having received this gracious nod from the non-political personality who peddles political chat, the union a few days later presented its plan in newspaper advertisements in some of the leading capitalist dailies.

In the ad the union presented an offer, 99 cent fake, to "forego all demands for double pay for Sundays and holidays and time and a half for Saturdays." This startling proposal dwindles to practically nothing in the next sentence which insisted, nevertheless, that time and a half be paid for all work over eight hours in any one day, for all over 40 hours in any seven-day week and for all work on the sixth day of a seven-day week period, and double time for all work on the seventh day in any such period.

There followed then the promise to accept the non-negotiable bonds, presumably bearing interest, in lieu of cash for all such overtime and an inadvertent admission that this overtime revenue would continue to be "tremendous."

Who Would Get It?

The union slipped up here in a boastful declaration that this acceptance of the bonds would "mean a tremendous source of income for financing the war effort," thus confirming Mrs. Roosevelt's tiny suspicion that the suggestion was not "entirely unselfish." Incidentally, the plan pointedly refrained from saying whether the union treasury would gather in this "tremendous" fund for political or other use at the discretion of the boss unionists or the individual faceless slaves of the boss-altruists. The difficulty of issuing bonds in units of odd dollars and cents would suggest a preference by the union for general currency of the "tremendous" pool and workers learn that they rarely get back any money paid into union treasuries.

Remembering that the President himself denounced as Communism the wage strike of this nation's North American Aviation, it will be interesting now to observe whether the congress of the whole American people will take dictation from the UAW, relayed through the White House, in this revolutionary proposal, as it has in many other matters.

Word Stories.

By W. Worthington Wells.

That the American people speak a language distinctively their own, there can be no doubt. When newspapers like the New York Times, the Kansas City Star and other famous papers that pride themselves on accuracy and correct usage, and rightfully so, run stories written by such famous educators as Virginia C. Gildersleeve, dean, Barnard College, Columbia University, or William F. Ogburn, professor of sociology, University of Chicago, in which they use the word GADGET, you must give the word some consideration.

You probably use the word in conversation, yet hesitate to use it in writing. But have you ever looked the word up in a good dictionary? Well then, anyway, it means just what you thought it did. It's a slang expression which apparently originated in the United States Navy. I'm not surprised at that.

The exact meaning seems to be somewhat vague, but it is generally agreed that it is used to refer to anything, the right name for which cannot be recalled at the time.

In case you cannot think of the word gadget, you may simply use the thing, thingamajig, jigger, or whatchamacallit. The dictionaries, merely by being themselves, have power to make our snobbish countrymen make fools of themselves and thus humiliate all of us.

ONE 'WORD' MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

FIVE-DAY-WEEK CONVICTS A short time ago the county commission publicly asked for advice from the public.

If the commission wants some advice, I would suggest they get down to business and do something about the tremendous and useless waste of the public works department's before an aroused public learns all about it.

It hardly seems possible the public will like to learn that—

The county convicts work on a four-hour, five-day week basis.

That the average work day in 1941 was five hours and 25 minutes.

That a tremendous total of more than 1,000 convicts, 1,128 or thereabouts, is maintained at a gigantic cost to the county. Two hundred and fifty convicts could do all the road work needed.

The convicts, wards of the state, cost the county almost 60 cents per hour for their labor on the estimated 40-hour week basis.

There are almost 500 persons employed to guard, feed and haul for the convicts. Truck drivers are not trustees, but members of the teamsters' union. Operators of road machines are not convicts, but hired workers.

It is estimated that 250, certainly not more than 300, convicts are all that are needed for the work, and that a maintenance crew of 25 could do all the maintenance work required.

The public works department is the great expensive department. It is not touched when reductions are made, because it is the source of patronage and political power. It is, with its unnecessary convicts, supplying jobs for unnecessary guards, cooks and foremen, a huge political machine which the commissioners are afraid to touch.

HAPPY CUSTOMS The public will not care to know that school teachers are paid as little as $80 per month, while elevator operators get $135 per month.

They will like it even less to realize that teachers get that little, but that truck drivers at the convict camps get $135 and board.

The public will also want to know why it was stated the contract for the park chairs was declared to have been a tentative one when the grand jury finds it was an out-and-out contract.

The public will begin to see, in time, that there is a difference between public servants and political servants. It is astounding to the average person, who goes along doing his job as best he or she can, and as honestly, to learn that public money is spent for what, in effect, is political patronage.

Certainly no man can argue that Fulton county needs to support more than 1,100 convicts, who are in idleness about two-thirds of their time, on a five-day, 40-hour-week basis.

The cost in guards, personnel and food is tremendous.

It is the one department, however, where jobs are really plentiful and where part-time, and temporary workers, can be put on in numbers.

It is the best pay-off department in jobs for political supporters. And so, it has become the sacred cow, costing the county more than $1,000,000 per year.

The people would advise some really courageous action on the part of the commissioners. They did not create it. They simply have carried on, maintaining the sacred cow in the style to which said cow has become accustomed.

INTEREST IN GOVERNMENT

There is a growing tendency to look closer at government and at governmental officials.

The public indignation against the congressional pensions was one example.

There is a growing number of persons who are registering and who will vote. (Saturday, incidentally, is the last day to register for this year's elections.)

After all—if you analyze it out—the war is being fought; thousands of men are dying and more will die; billions are being spent, all to one purpose.

To maintain for us the right to vote.

That knowledge is coming closer and closer to people everywhere. When you talk about democracy you mean the ballot box. It all stems out of that.

It is the height of folly to labor for the war effort, to cheer the men off to war, and to ignore the right to vote.

Finally, it seems to be time for all those holding public office to realize that our political system did become corrupt and slothful that it did become the accepted thing to serve the office and not the people; that the people did become careless and did not demand much of their officials . . . but that patriotism can be displayed in public service.

The best advice would be to correct the faults—even though they hurt. The people have a right to expect that.

When Americans Realize Their Own Greatness, They Won't Dislike Friendly Strangers

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Several English writers have attempted in magazine articles to explain why some Americans dislike Englishmen. They fail, for the most part, because they tactfully ignore facts.

Prejudice against England began in childhood. We were taught to reverse the fathers of our country and the soldiers of the Revolution; and since these were noble and blameless, it followed that King George and his Red Coats were evil and abominable. And since most of us did not attend school long enough to unlearn what we had learned in childhood, this prejudice was never outgrown. But that wasn't all. There was also the broad "A." Ninety per cent of us grew up with the conviction that the broad "A" was an affectionate—a putting on of airs. Of course putting on airs means imitating people who are more stylish or a cut higher in the social scale.

We knew that Back Bay people and other swells used the broad "A" naturally, but we were suspicious of anybody else who did it. When we heard the English using it, it meant they were putting on airs or they were swells; and since their innocent children used it, the putting-on-airs theory had to be discarded. That left only one explanation, and it was hard on our ego. We knew we were not swells, and apparently the English were.

And that wasn't all. There was also the matter of

265 SOLDIERS FIGHTING ON THE CONSERVATION FRONT

It's a lot harder to conserve a taxicab than a pleasure car. Taxicabs have a job to do. The Public needs them. And the Public needs them urgently a big part of the time.

The Sunday Driver can pick the smooth streets. He can stay out of traffic. He can choose his own speed. But not the man behind the Taxi wheel.

So it's tough to be Patriotic in a cab.

And it's just as hard to do it at the Dispatching Switchboard. An urgent call comes for a cab. You know there's a cab going to discharge a passenger in that vicinity ten minutes from now... but your caller stresses his urgent need.

So you must "deadhead" a cab out there, while that other cab "deadheads" back. True conservation would get the two trips together—make one cab, one set of tires, one tank of gasoline do both jobs.

But our 265 Soldiers try—and they try hard.

They baby their cabs in traffic, avoiding jack-rabbit starts. They try to pick the soft spots in the street. And when the passengers permit, they keep to a tire-and-gasoline-saving pace.

The Soldiers at the Switchboard do their best to convince callers that a few moments wait will be the patriotic thing to do...

And they succeed, because the Public really wants to help just as much as our folks want to conserve.

There are no medals in it—but the 265 men and women of Yellow Cab are in there, fighting—and fighting hard—for conservation!

MISSION TO MOSCOW.

Former ambassador to Russia, Joseph E. Davies, has brought us all under lasting obligation to him for the fine service rendered in his recent book, "Mission to Moscow."

The book is a record of confidential dispatches to the State Department, official and personal correspondence, current diary and journal entries, including notes and comments up to October, 1941.

To put it another way, this book tells the inside story of Russia from the treason trials to the Nazi-Soviet war.

Mr. Davies, who makes no secret of his capitalistic interests, went to Russia as U. S. ambassador on November 16, 1936, as a seasoned diplomat with an open mind and an understanding heart.

What he saw, he faithfully reported. "Mission to Moscow" gives with rich human details a key to what Winston Churchill has called "a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma."

I could go on writing about the book, which I took nearly a whole night to read; but the real purpose of his column is to call attention to the fact that the author will be in Atlanta next Monday, May 4, and will make the opening talk at the World Affairs Symposium that evening at the Municipal Auditorium. He will, of course, talk about Russia. And I wouldn't know where to turn to find a man who can talk more interestingly and intelligently about Russia. Mr. Davies will tell us about Russia just like William Shirer told us about Germany in his "Berlin Diary." Now here is another fine thing about that meeting next Monday and Tuesday. It is a benefit for the Red Cross.

In addition to Mr. Davies, who opens the program Monday evening, we are to hear Marjorie Rawlings, author of Cross Creek, "The Yearling," and other best sellers. And then there is James Young, whose "Why Japan Will Fall" and "Behind the Rising Sun" have identified him as one of the authoritative writers on Japanese affairs. He was International News correspondent in Japan 13 years. And then there is Louis Fischer, for 20 years European correspondent and author of "Men and Politics" and "The Dawn of Victory."

When you buy a ticket for the World Affairs Symposium, you are helping yourself and the Red Cross. It seems to be a very happy combination, and I hope many people will find it possible to attend this altogether worthwhile symposium and thus further strengthen the work of the Red Cross.

Cameras Are 'Parked' At Valdosta USO Club

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. VALDOSTA, Ga., April 29.—Major William Langer, commander of the Valdosta USO Club, has installed a "camera bank" that is hailed as a great convenience to the camera addicts at Moody field.

Among the thousands of uniformed men at the field there are many camera fiends, and the military rule that no cameras may be used in the reservation line caused many of the men to pack their cameras and ship them home. However, Major Langer conceived the idea of lockers at the USO club where the men could safely leave their photo outfits until they get back in town to take more photos. The "bank" is a busy place every day.

Dudley Glass

"That reminds me—" usually leads to an alleged joke which is a reprint of the one the other fellow has just told.

In your story the victim's name was Smith instead of Jones. Or else to a rambling anecdote of one's youth—like this one:

Juror in federal court here a few days ago didn't show up when court opened. He was found asleep on a bench, waked up and transferred to the jury box.

He had better luck than I did, away back in my cub days in Savannah.

I was assigned to cover the Federal building there. It was a hot morning and the courtroom, where nothing was going on, was comparatively cool. I found a fairly comfortable chair, yawned, stretched and passed off into a delightful nap. Why not? Nobody ever was in a hurry in Savannah.

I was awakened by a bailiff. Then, to my horror, I saw upon the bench no less a monarch than Judge Emory Speer, who brooked no act, word or thought impinging upon his dignity and importance. Summoned before his throne I was lectured in caustic phrases and arbitrarily sentenced to 10 days in jail for contempt of court. The judge declined to listen to explanations. I was remanded to the sheriff's office. Or maybe the marshals'.

In that cozy spot I could sit in front of a fan, smoke and read the morning paper, upon which I had toiled several weeks.

After a while the chief functionary came in and said he had explained to Judge Speer that I was a newspaperman and therefore hardly responsible for my uncouth conduct; that the courtroom was empty when I invaded it, and that I meant no harm to man or beast.

Delves Deep Into the Past; A Cub's Defiance

"So the judge says if you'll step up and apologize he'll let you off with a reprimand," said my new friend.

By that time I was mad.

"You go back and tell the judge that I've already had all the reprimands I can swallow in one day and that I have nothing to apologize for," I returned. "Tell him the Savannah jail is the coolest building in town, that I spend more time in leisure time there, playing pitch with the jailer and a few of the inmates, and that whether I stay there 10 days or 10 years my salary will go right on. And I'll acquire savings, because Uncle Sam will pay for my board and lodging."

The functionary pleaded with me to respect the judge's dignity and high position and permit him to back down without "losing face," as the Chinese say. But I knew the Morning News would back me to the limit, so I went back to reading it.

In about an hour my friend returned to suggest that the door to the corridor was open and if I went out of it into the free open air he could promise I'd never hear any more of the case. Which I did. And everybody forgot all about it.

Just Ask Haden

The Florida legislature, ever generous with the taxpayers' money, has appropriated $5,000 for expenses of a committee to ascertain whether Stephen Foster ever visited the Suwanee River or did he just see it on a map?

It will be to Georgia's everlasting shame if Governor Talmadge doesn't insist on matching Florida's gift to posterity or at least splitting the expense. For the Suwanee river rises in Georgia's own Okefenokee Swamp, and merely passes through Florida on its way somewhere else.

My impression, from reading a great deal about Foster, is that he never penetrated deeper into the heart of Dixie than Covington, Ky., than, as now, the site of a number of excellent distilleries and adjacent to Foster's home in Cincinnati. Which lack of travel by no means prevented his turning out more melodic and singable songs than any man before or since—barring Schubert and Irving Berlin.

The oft-told story is that Foster, seeking the name of a river for his lyric, first picked the Peedee, in South Carolina. But Peedee is not what you'd call a euphonious word and it would be difficult to fit Apalachicola into a tuneful measure. So he looked through a directory of rivers and chose the Suwanee, shortening it to S'wanee. But the Florida lawmakers and money spenders need not send an expedition to trace Foster from the cradle to the grave. If they'd just get Charles J. Haden, of Atlanta, on the phone he could tell them. He is Foster's foremost fan. He even caused to be erected on the banks of the Suwanee at Fargo, Ga., a monument to the composer.

A hot dog does not constitute a meal, rules a California judge. What about two of them, with plenty of mustard?

Dorothy Thompson Says:

Parallels: Hitler and Napoleon

Volumes could be written on the Hitler speech, but the most illuminating things about it arises out of the situation in which it is made. Of this more will be said in later columns. But my first comment on it will be to compare it with what Napoleon said under similar conditions in the year 1812.

Napoleon had been to Moscow and was back in Warsaw; he was not defeated; neither were the Russians. He was, however, not only disappointed in Russia, but worried about the home front, about the occupied countries of the continent, and above all, about what the English might do. He did not know their plans.

In this mood he talked at length to General deCaulaincourt, a loyal supporter of the Emperor, who, however, had had the temerity to warn him that Europe was not behind him, however clearly it might seem to be; that only his armies were holding down rebellion; that the Russian campaign, as he, deCaulaincourt, had predicted, had been a mistake.

Also Blamed English. Napoleon argued with deCaulaincourt and along almost exactly the lines that Hitler used on Sunday.

About the English, Napoleon said: "The English... have driven me to every step I have taken. If they had only made peace after Austerlitz, or after Tilsit, I would have been quiet. The people of Europe are blind to their real dangers. They see nothing but my armies, as though the English were not threatening them far more. Europe should think of only one enemy. That is the Russian colossus."

Hitler: "I do not know whether all Englishmen will today still consider it wise and enlightened action to have rejected all the efforts I made to obtain an understanding since 1933, or to reject the alliance I offered as late as September, 1939, and the peace I offered after the Polish and French campaigns. We all know that regarding the reorganization of the continent, England promised a political doctrine that aimed at splitting the continent for the welfare of the British empire... the battle in the east will be continued. The Bolshevik Colossus will be hit until it is destroyed."

About the reasons for the disaster on the Russian front: Napoleon: "It's the winter that has been our undoing. We are victims of the climate. If I had only set out a fortnight sooner... should not have stayed so long in Moscow. Everything turned out badly because I began my retreat too late."

Hitler Alibi Similar. Hitler: "A winter was beginning to settle over the East such as had not been seen even in this part of Europe for over 140 years. Four weeks earlier than foreseen all operations came to a sudden stop. Right in the midst of our advance our front line soldiers could not stream back or stay in the posts occupied. Neither the German soldier, tank or locomotive was prepared for the sudden onslaught of the cold."

About himself: Napoleon: "I am not ambitious. Long nights, fatigue, war—I'm too old for that. I like my bed and rest as well as anyone. I only want to finish my work."

Hitler: "I myself have not claimed as much as three free days for myself since 1933... I ask nothing more of the Almighty than that He... should grant that I may live only so long as is necessary to see the fulfillment of the destiny of the German people."

Napoleon had something on his mind about which he talked to his confidant. Hitler has the same thing on his mind, no doubt, and he mentioned it contemptuously in his speech... the landing of the British "at night with blackened faces and rubber shoes."

What did Napoleon think about such possible landings? "As it is I know where to look for the English. If they were not occupied there (in Spain) I would be forced to prepare for them and hold myself ready for defense against them at every point. And that would use up many more troops, give me much more anxiety and possibly do much more damage."

Parallel Positions. "If 30,000 English landed in Belgium or in the Pas de Calais and requisitioned supplies from 300 villages—if they were to go and burn the Chateau of Caulaincourt—they would do me much more harm than forcing me to maintain an army in Spain."

"You must take good care not to repeat the ideas I express to you; for if the idea entered the British heads to make expeditions against my coasts, now at one point and now at another, to re-embark as soon as forces were collected to fight them, and go at once to threaten some other point—the situation would be unsupportable!"

The position of the two men was almost exactly the same. The eastern front demanded attention; all Europe was occupied and being primed for a new order, and the British had the support of the "stupid" populations, "who, if I gave them their heads, would welcome the English with open arms."

And Napoleon was threatening them with "the danger of the Russian Colossus."

And something like blackfaced, rubber-shod commandos landing all over the place was one form of warfare which Napoleon greatly feared might pop into British heads as it had popped into his own.

You'll certainly smile again if you use Constitution Want Ads.

'GWTW' Return Is Highlight of Theater Bills

"GWTW" returns to Loew's Grand theater today for its third anniversary performance to highlight the week's change in theater offerings which includes a drama of the sea, a story of Marine life, and a tale of the Klondike, plus two holdovers. The Capitol offers a new stage-screen bill starting tomorrow.

"To the Shores of Tripoli" is the Fox's new offering starting tomorrow. The Rialto offers drama in "Martin Eden" and "The Spoilers." Rex Beach's story of the great north plays at the Roxy. "Twin Beds" and "Kings Row" will be held over at the Rhodes and Paramount theaters, respectively.

Loew's Grand
"Gone With the Wind" is back at Loew's Grand.
All of which confirms the opinions expressed in these columns before—GWTW will be revived and revived year after year. And each year it will be as fresh, as colorful and thrilling as before. And find a big audience eager to see it for the first time or see it again.
Remember when "Gone With the Wind" first burst upon this popteyed community? Despite rain and wind and snow, GWTW became a citywide epidemic and a national phenomenon. Things were not so prosperous in those days—but millions found the money to pay for the higher-scaled tickets.

Then last year came the "first anniversary" engagement—at prices cut about in half. And now Loew's announces the third engagement and the same prices as last year's—40c for matinees and 55c at night, with a special price of 17c for children. Performances will be continuous from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. The picture will be shown in its entirety as originally presented.

Rialto
Atlanta's Evelyn Keyes makes another visit to the screen of a hometown theater tomorrow when she is co-starred with Glenn Ford and Claire Trevor in "Martin Eden" at the Rialto theater.

The picture is based on Jack London's powerful story of the two-fisted men who manned the old-time cargo ships in the days when the brutal shipmaster made the life of his foremost hands a literal hell at sea. It tells of how one man puts up a fight against that era of human brutality and how he succeeds.

Glenn Ford is in the title role. Claire Trevor is the waterfront girl who helps him in his fight. Evelyn Keyes plays the role of the society girl who also loves Ford, and Stuart Erwin provides the comedy in the highly dramatic role of Eden's shipmate pal.

Fox
"To the Shores of Tripoli," a screen tribute to the gallant band of "Leathernecks" who defended Wake Island against overwhelming odds, a story of how raw recruits are taken and trained to become the "fightingest men on earth" with John Payne, Randolph Scott and Maureen O'Hara in the leading roles, opens at the Fox theater tomorrow.

Payne plays the role of the first who falls in love with pretty Maureen O'Hara, a Marine nurse. Randolph Scott is the tough sergeant who makes life both interesting and miserable for Payne.
Most of the scenes in technicolor were filmed at the Marine base at San Diego. Hundreds of enlisted men took part in the picture.

Roxy
A new version of Rex Beach's "The Spoilers," a story of a shrewd, seductive beautiful woman,

Hitler Releases

Bishop From Camp

LONDON, April 29.—(AP)—Released from a concentration camp on Adolf Hitler's personal orders, Bishop Eivind Berggrav, of Norway, now is confined in a summer cottage guarded by 20 men and surrounded by barbed wire. Reuters reported today, quoting the Stockholm Social Democrat.
His "release" from the concentration camp was said to have been dictated by Norwegian political conditions—a euphemism for public unrest over his imprisonment.
Reuters also reported that the dean of Trondheim, a Dr. Fjellbu, and his wife, had been interned.

an, who operates a gambling casino in the great north and of the two men who fight for her love and for possession of the fabulous gold mines of the Klondike opens at the Roxy theater today. Marlene Dietrich handles the role of Cherry Malotte, the gambling queen, and Randolph Scott and John Wayne play the roles of the two gold seekers.
One of the highlights of the show is the famous fist fight which critics claim this time to be filmed with even more vividness than ever before. Another bright spot in the picture is when Marlene turns on Wayne with all her fury when he breaks their love affair.

Capitol

Starting tomorrow the Capitol theater offers on the stage "Hooray for Life," a new unit which promises to have a wide variety of entertainment including girls, comedy music, singing and dancing.

Headline acts in "Hooray for Life" includes Flo Nickerson, the Empress of Mirth; the Five Howe Sisters, unusually talented girls; Tanglefoot the blackface dancing star; the White Twins, Ralph Reno and others.
A special added attraction to be offered with the stage show will be "America on Parade," a patriotic overture to be conducted by the Capitol's orchestra leader, J. T. Bourn. On the screen the Capitol offers "Valley of the Sun," a special western epic starring Lucile Ball, James Craig, Dean Jagger and 1,000 Apache Indians.

Paramount

The vivid story of how two young couples find love and happiness in spite of the opposition of their parents and social town gossip, and how they eventually overcome heartaches and afflictions is told on the screen of the Paramount theater, where "Kings Row," Henry Bellamann's novel, plays a holdover engagement beginning tomorrow.

Ann Sheridan plays the role of the girl from the other side of the tracks who falls in love with Reagan. Reagan is overcome by affliction, but Ann sticks by his side to see him through. The romance of Betty Field and Robert Cummings meets with early tragedy.

Rhodes

Edward Small's "Twin Beds," the funny story of complications which arise when a "nightclub" Russian romo awakes to find himself in the other twin bed of another man's apartment moves to the Rhodes theater today for a holdover run. Joan Bennett and George Brent are teamed in romantic roles and Mischa Auer and Una Merkle provide the comedy.
The story opens to find Brent and Bennett estranged because of Jean's interest in the Russian, Mischa Auer. Their marriage lies are further endangered when Mischa is found in Joan's apartment. The Russian saves the day, however, when he escapes down the fire escape clad only in his underwear.

Advertising Urged To Keep Brands Alive

Government Publication Cites Investment in Product Names.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP) Continued advertising to keep brand names alive in the public mind was advocated in the current issue of Domestic Commerce, weekly publication of the Commerce Department.

With the advent of war, wrote Nathan D. Golden, one of the department's industrial consultants, the function of advertising becomes increasingly important and one of its major jobs is "providing information to those fighting on the home front and in the production fields," to "help producers to increase output of fighting tools and promote more efficient use of products by civilians."

"With the possible introduction of the 'Victory' label for canned and packaged goods," said Golden, "the question arises, what will happen to brand names of merchandise for which producers have spent millions of dollars in advertising to make consumers 'brand conscious'?"

"Come what may in our effort to conserve materials, labels and distinctive brand names may, of necessity, become eliminated temporarily from packages and products."

"Manufacturers in Great Britain have met this problem in safe-guarding their investment in brand names by continued advertising. Brand names can and should be kept alive in the minds of those to whom the manufacturer must look for business in the postwar period. If the salability of advertised merchandise is to be maintained, people must be told continually of the high quality of the merchandise bearing specified brand names."

Golden said that advertising to promote more effective use of products by civilians "may call for the use of larger space than ordinarily would be used for a selling campaign" and that it was the type of advertising that would "specialize in long copy—long enough to tell the complete story."

Sanitary Chief Lauds Success Of 'Clean Up'

Good Response Made to Drive by Women's Group Here.

If the amount of debris hauled from Atlanta's homes and streets is any criterion, the annual clean-up campaign of the Atlanta Woman's Chamber of Commerce was a huge success, City Sanitary Chief H. J. Cates said yesterday as he reported one of the busiest weeks in the department's history. Cates said the department's fleet of 54 trucks hauled several hundred loads of trash during the week from streets and yards throughout the city.

He reminded Atlantans that although the campaign is ended a call to the sanitary department still will bring a truck for trash. He urged home owners not to pile the trash in the street but to leave it in or near the driveway.

Mrs. Carolyn Seivers, chairman of the annual campaign, also reported the drive a huge success. She said public co-operation was splendid and pointed to the fact that more organizations than ever before co-operated in this year's drive.

Busy wives must make every effort count

IT'S Easy TO SHOP Between TEN and FOUR

These are busy days for American women. Red Cross work, Civilian Defense work, First Aid classes, welfare work—these activities have been added to the full-time job of homemaking.

Which means that you must conserve your time and efforts to get through each day's full schedule.

Have you hesitated to come to town to do much-needed shopping for fear of crowded cars and buses? Have you avoided trips you thought would be slow and fatiguing?

If that's the case, then you should try riding in the preferred shopping hours—from ten to four.

At that time, the cars are uncrowded. The chances are you will have a seat, and the trip to and from town will be restful, instead of tiring.

In addition, the cars make better time in the middle of the day. That's true for two reasons: first, traffic conditions are better and, second, the cars make fewer stops to load and unload.

Perhaps, back in the old days, you formed the habit of driving your own automobile to town. Now, you are patriotically saving tires and gasoline, and for that reason have been kept pretty close at home.

If that's the case—make a trip to town on the bus or trolley. Probably you will find out, to your surprise, that it is even more convenient than using your own automobile.

Spring won't wait. Visit the downtown stores and buy the things you really need. Start as early as 9:30 if you wish.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE —

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks lunk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Effective in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills, 10¢ and 25¢.

U. S. Employees
Told to Reduce Use of AutosTaxicab Owners Ordered to Quit "Nonessential Services."

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP) Uncle Sam's employees were told today to reduce "substantially" the number of automobiles necessary to take them to and from their work.

And in the same breath, the government ordered taxicab owners to quit performing "nonessential services" for Mr. and Mrs. America, stop "cruising," encourage multiple riding and other measures to obtain the maximum efficiency from each cab.

The directive to federal department and agency heads was issued by President Roosevelt who asserted "it is imperative that we extend as long as possible that period of time in which we can count on private transportation of factory and office workers to their places of work and home again."

Problem Critical.
Pointing out that the transportation problem, caused by the rubber shortage and gasoline curtailment, "is rapidly becoming critical" in many communities, Mr. Roosevelt said the reduction program "should be undertaken immediately and thoroughly." He added:

"I am also sending a copy of this letter to the Council of State Governments, the National Municipal Association and the United States Conference of Mayors asking that they use their influence to bring about the inauguration of similar programs in the state and local governments."

In connection with the gasoline curtailment noted by Mr. Roosevelt, Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum co-ordinator, disclosed there was no immediate plan to order a further slash in gasoline consumption on the east coast and in the Pacific northwest. A one-third reduction, recently ordered, takes effect May 1.

Supply Changing.
Davies added, however, that "this does not mean that further curtailments may or may not be necessary, for we cannot determine far ahead. The supply situation in the east is changing rapidly. We can only say that we are doing everything possible to get gasoline and other petroleum products to the consuming areas where they are needed."

B. Eastman, defense transportation director, in ordering taxicabs to cease non-essential services specifically included "cruising."

"Cruising must be eliminated and dead mileage reduced to the lowest possible point," he declared. He likewise told the cab-driving public that they could not expect the "highly personalized" service to which they were accustomed.

City Air Raid
Forces Will Aid
Sale of Bonds6 of 9 Zones Set Organization Meetings, Peyton Asserts.

General E. G. Peyton, commander of the city civilian defense forces, yesterday announced that six of the nine air raid protection zones under his command either had held or set the date for their "Sign Your Bond Pledge" or organization meetings.

Along with the Fulton county defense organization the city air raid defenders will conduct the Treasury Department's house to house bond pledge canvass on May 11. Dorothy Lamour, screen star, will launch the campaign at a series of public appearances here May 9.

The 750 members of Zone 2 will hold their preliminary pledge campaign meeting at the English Avenue school tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Mack Frankel is zone commander, and Samuel J. Aldrich, chief of air raid wardens of Zone 1, the downtown area, will call together a portion of his 1,800 civilian guardians on May 7 to map their plans for the bond drive. Part of the Zone 1 force will work in the residential areas where the individual members reside, while the remainder conduct the downtown hotel and boarding house canvass.

A. L. Zachry of the War Bond Speakers' Bureau last night outlined the pledge campaign to 1,500 air raid wardens of Zone 5 in a meeting at Bass Junior High school, and Tuesday night Zone 8 got under way with a meeting of precinct captains called together by B. W. Moore, zone co-ordinator.

More than 75 other meetings will be held in Zone 8 as the precinct and sector commanders outline the pledge campaign to meetings of the block wardens.

2 Indictments
Name Engineer
As Seditious

CHATTANOOGA, April 29.—(AP)—George W. Christians, Chattanooga engineer-advocate of an "economic revolution," today was charged in two federal indictments with sedition in the distribution of allegedly subversive literature.

Federal Judge Darr set his trial for May 13 after Christians had pleaded innocent at his arraignment a few minutes after the grand jury reported the indictments. Christians will appear before Judge Darr tomorrow morning in an effort to get a reduction in his $10,000 bond.

One true bill was based on a charge that Christians mailed literature to officers and men of the Army with intent to incite them "to insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny and refusal of duty," and that he attempted to interfere with enlistments in the armed forces.

The other charged that the self-styled commander of the "Crusader White Shirts" advocated overthrow of the government by force.

At his preliminary hearing several weeks ago, Christians admitted the authorship of several letters and circulars introduced by the government and in which he used "strong language." But, he asserted, he advocated only a "legal economic revolution."

The "revolution," he testified, would be based on an economic order in which human effort replaced gold as the monetary standard.

Noted Glynn
Health Officer
Honored HereDr. Winchester Returns
After Receiving New
C. of C. Award.

Pausing in Atlanta on his return from Chicago, where he received a plaque from the United States Chamber of Commerce on behalf of Glynn county for its outstanding achievements in public health, Dr. M. E. Winchester yesterday was guest at a luncheon given for him by Robert F. Maddox, president of the state board of health, at the Capital City Club.

Winner of two previous awards and then barred from further health contests of the Chamber, Glynn county was again permitted to compete in 1941, and, as one of the 14 outstanding counties in the country in public health work, received a third award last Monday.

The gloom of the live oaks of the marshes of Glynn, made famous by Sidney Lanier, was a thing of beauty, but it concealed malaria, which was widespread among the inhabitants of the Georgia littoral. The disease met a redoubtable adversary in Dr. Winchester, who left the state board of health after nine years in 1934 to become commissioner of health of Glynn county. His first outstanding achievement in that county was in 1935, when he cleaned up malaria in that section by the use of a new German drug, atabrine. The story of this battle has been written by Paul de Kruif.

Dr. Winchester, a native of Moultrie and a graduate of Emory, followed up this campaign with a drive on venereal disease, which was described in a national magazine in an article entitled "Bad Blood Wagon," by Walter Davenport. Dr. Winchester said yesterday that already syphilis had been reduced 50 per cent in the Brunswick area and eliminated on the island of Sapelo.

Also present at yesterday's luncheon was another famous colleague of Dr. Winchester's on the state board of health, Dr. J. G. Williams.

LONDON, Thursday, April 30. (AP)—German bombers carrying out reprisal raids smashed last night and early today at an East Anglian town, where tons of heavy explosives and thousands of fire bombs showered down.

The British termed the attack "a severe one," but there was no early estimate of casualties or damage.

Local fire fighting units soon had to appear to neighboring sectors for help as the Nazi airmen dove repeatedly through a terrific anti-aircraft barrage.

Wesley B. Williams, Route 3, Conyers, Ga., has enlisted for aviation training in the Naval Reserve and soon will be ordered to report at the air base near Atlanta.

DETROIT, April 29.—(AP)—Protected by armed state troops, state and city police, Negro families today began occupying the $1,000,000 federally sponsored Sojourner Truth housing project in northeast Detroit, scene of bloodshed two months ago.

In contrast to rioting near the 200-unit project February 28, in which nearly a score of persons were injured, there was no violence today.

Here are two simple steps to new pep... vitality... better looks!

Restore vital digestive juices in the stomach... energize your body with rich, red blood!

If you are one of those unfortunate who have worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper foods, have been vexed by overtaxing worries, or have suffered with colds, the flu, or other illness... yet have no organic trouble or focal infection... and your red-blood-cells have become reduced in vitality and number... if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is what should help you! S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build up blood strength when deficient... to revive and stimulate those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you eat... to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality... pep... become animated... more attractive!

Build sturdy health For when you tone up the stomach and get its digestive juices flowing freely, you should enjoy again that old-time zest for food... stomach digestive juices should vanish. S.S.S. STUDIES WORK—Miss Jane Norton is shown looking at advertisement in which she appears in Good Housekeeping, trying to figure out how her modeling in this instance could have been improved. Judging from her expression, she isn't as pleased as she might be, but her work has been called exceptionally good by John Powers, by whom she is employed. Miss Norton will appear on the July cover of Redbook.

Atlantan Picked for Movie

An Atlanta girl, winner of the Victory Ball, staged here last February, has within 10 short weeks become one of New York's leading models, and has been selected for a part in the United Artists' "Powers Models," scheduled to appear here this fall.

She is the former Miss Helen Gilbert, daughter of Mrs. Fay Gilbert, of a Ponce de Leon avenue address.

Arriving in New York some 10 weeks ago, she adopted the professional name of Jane Norton, and yesterday returned to Atlanta to visit Jane Norton, who is the 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Buller, 901 North College street, College Park.

12 Out of 300.

Of 300 models, Miss Norton was one of 12 to be chosen for parts in the film, "Powers Models," based on the Powers book. She will have a straight part as she does not sing or dance. Premieres will be arranged in the home towns of the 12 girls, Miss Norton said. Because of wartime uncertainties, definite plans will not be made for some time. A tour of South America is being planned in connection with the film and in support of the Good Neighbor policy.

Miss Norton has already reached the ambition of every model—she'll appear on the cover of a national magazine. The July Redbook cover that will greet more than a million subscribers, shows Miss Norton wearing a black western-looking John Frederick hat and a Hattie Carnegie gray print dress with funny little figures.

Poses for Ads.

She was a model for an advertisement in the current Good Housekeeping. She has completed work on several hand ads for lotions and also a cold cream ad that will appear soon in national magazines.

Miss Norton is the widow of James Perry, Eastern Air Lines pilot, killed last year when his passenger liner crashed near Morrow.

BENEFIT FUND.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., April 29.—Unemployed benefits totaling $4,855 have been paid to 522 workers in Baldwin county under terms of the state unemployment compensation law for the first three months of 1942, the State Labor Department has announced.

MODEL VISITING HERE—Miss Jane Norton, widow of James Perry, pilot of the ill-fated Eastern Air Lines that crashed near here last year, shown in the living room of her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Buller, of College Park.

The agency originally was named Agence L.F.F.—for "liberty, equality, fraternity," of the now defunct French republic—when it was founded in July, 1940, then was reorganized under its present name January 29, 1941.

Its managing director is Pierre Maillaud. Among the other directors are Pierre Comert, for many years head of the press department of the French ministry of foreign affairs in Paris and now editor of "France," a Free French newspaper published here in London, and Jean Massip, chief of the Free French Information Bureau. Army Recruiting Railroad Men for Service Abroad

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP)—The new commander of the Military Railway Service, Colonel Carl R. Gray Jr., declared today that "we're going to do a crackerjack job of railroad for the American Army in the world-wide theaters of war."

Now in training stages, the service is drawing from the nation's rail system operating executives, maintenance experts, mechanical superintendents and workmen.

Eventually, 30,000 to 35,000 officers and men will make up the Military Railway Service in a headquarters battalion, 10 railway grand division headquarters, 42 operating battalions and six shop battalions.

None Abroad As Yet.

"Our job will be to provide the rail transportation the Army needs in theaters of war," Colonel Gray said. "Therefore, we will have no concern with commercial railroad operation in the United States, unless the country is invaded."

He said none of the service personnel had gone abroad yet and declined to say when, or if, any would.

Colonel Gray's job is similar to the World War post of the late W. W. Atterbury, Pennsylvania railroad president who was commissioned a brigadier general and sent to France as director general of transportation of the AEF.

Colonel Gray is 53 and a son of the late Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific railroad. He was in general staff transportation work in the first World War, rising to the rank of lieutenant colonel, and has been a colonel in the Corps of Engineers reserve since 1923. On May 15 he will leave his civilian job as executive vice president of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad, at St. Paul, to enter active duty with the military railway service headquarters staff at Fort Snelling, Minn.

Colonel Gray discussed his new job at a press conference and in a talk to the freight claim division of the Association of American Railroads.

Three operating battalions and one shop battalion are in training now, another operating battalion and the headquarters staff will begin service May 15. Each operating battalion will have a headquarters and service company and three other companies, but will function like a railroad division. Shop battalions will have the same number of companies.

The service is seeking railroad men who have already entered other branches of the armed forces, Colonel Gray said, and also is attempting not to disrupt seriously the personnel of the heavily burdened commercial rail system.

"Our sole aim will be to get men, materiel and ammunition where they are needed, when they are needed," he said. When a reporter asked about arming of the service, he replied: "We'll have pistols and rifles and let nature take its course, if we need 'em."

Coke Workers' Strike Halted At Bethlehem

CIO Votes Unanimously To Return To Jobs.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., April 29.—(AP)—A two-day-old walkout of CIO coke oven workers at the Bethlehem Steel Company's Cambridge works, affecting between 1,200 and 5,000 men, ended to night.

The striking CIO steel workers organizing committee members voted unanimously to return to their jobs when they were assured their demands for a 12 1/2 cents an hour wage adjustment would be referred to the War Labor Board "with priority over all other cases for an immediate decision."

James B. Gent, sub-regional director of the union, and Harry E. Rouff, labor consultant for the War Production Board, gave the assurance in a joint statement. Gent said the strike was unauthorized, but that it had the union's support.

The workers, whose pay ranges upward from a minimum of 71 1/2 cents an hour, claimed they have tried for 11 months to get an increase which would make their rate similar to that in other mills. Even before 11 p. m. (E. W. T.) time set for the men to go back, some began arriving at the plant gates.

The walkout was one of the most serious in the steel industry since the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor last December.

Sidney D. Evans, company representative, estimated the shutdown had caused an "irreplaceable loss" of 3,000 tons of steel ingots in the blast furnaces. He said the men were returning at the same rate of pay but without loss of seniority, with the "whole question of wages" to go before the labor board.

The union has another case against Bethlehem and other "little steel" companies pending before the War Labor Board in which it is demanding a flat increase of $1 a day with a union shop agreement.

$4.80 Month Pays Everything

You can paint your house inside and out and paper the walls, on our $4.80 per month budget plan, for jobs that cost up to $100. Larger jobs proportionately more. This takes care of EVERYTHING—material, labor and moderate handling charges. Ask at any of our eight stores for full particulars.

Cooledge "Hy-Grade" Semi-Gloss Wall Paint 2.80

You will pay $3.30 per gallon, or more, elsewhere for paint of equal quality. Don't forget, freight charges add much to the cost of paints shipped in from distant points. Compare prices, grade for grade and you'll find a big difference—50c or more.

Cooledge "Hy-Grade" Flat Wall Paint 2.30

No finer wall paint can be made at any price. You save 20c to 25c a gallon on freight alone, as Cooledge paints are made right here in Atlanta. Try matching this paint elsewhere and you'll find the price to be at least 30c a gallon more. Why not save freight and handling cost on the paint you buy? Ask for color card.

ADM 100% Pure Linseed Oil 1.50

The life of paint depends greatly on the quality of linseed oil used. Buy ADM in original factory-packed lithographed cans—weight 7 1/4 lbs. (not 7 1/2) to the gallon—and gain 10% more oil than if poured from larger containers, besides getting cleaner, purer oil.

Cooledge "Hy-Grade" Porch & Deck 3.25

Note this attractive per gallon price on the finest paint for all surfaces exposed to the weather. None better at any price.

Cooledge "Hy-Grade" House Paint 3.15

No finer house paint can be made at any price. You save 20c to 25c per gallon on freight alone, as Cooledge paints are made right here in Atlanta. White and all wanted colors.

TORPEDOED—Seaman Jimmy Wade, 18-year-old Atlantan, is home on leave after being rescued from a raft after a German submarine had torpedoed his ship off the Florida coast. He's going right back.

Jimmy Wade Relates Story Of Torpedoing

Young Atlantan, Home on Leave, Ready To Go Back.

Jimmy Wade is home from the sea, with a story to tell that should make him the envy of every boy—and girl—in Murphy Junior High school.

Not many boys of 18, outside of books, have a ship torpedoed under them, spend hours of darkness on a raft and are rescued by a British subchaser. But all that happened to James Thomas Wade, apprentice seaman, on board a northbound tanker April 10. Jimmy wouldn't give the name of the ship but he said the rescue ship landed them at a Florida port. Newspaper reports revealed the attack on the ship had been seen by hundreds of civilians on shore.

"I enlisted in the Navy in Atlanta on January 12," he said. "I was assigned to a Navy gun crew on board the tanker."

"The attack happened at night and about all I remember is being dragged onto a raft and staying there two hours and a half. Then the British ship turned up and took us off. Four of us were on the raft and we had picked up two more."

Another Atlantan in that gun crew was not so fortunate. James Nelson Montgomery was listed as missing and the listing has not been changed.

Young Wade is home on 10-day leave. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Wade, 718 Kalb street, Southeast.

"Sure, I'm going right back," he said. "Wherever they send me I hope I'll get a crack at one of those subs."

Ninth Open House In Science Tonight

The scientists of tomorrow will be entertained by the scientists of today when high school seniors in the Atlanta area make an inspection tour of Emory University's science departments from 7:30 to 10:30 o'clock tonight as guests at Emory's ninth annual open house in science.

The program, which will conduct the visitors through a veritable "scientific wonderland," includes the latest discoveries in almost every field of science. It is sponsored by the Emory chapter of Phi Alpha chemical fraternity, with the assistance of Phi Sigma biological fraternity and the Engineers' Club.

Exhibits will include the university museum—with a complete collection of Georgia birds, insects from all over the world, and Egyptian mummies—and Emory's war information center, headquarters of war information for the Fourth Corps Area.

May 22 Designated As Maritime Day

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP) President Roosevelt by proclamation today set aside May 22 as National Maritime Day and called for public recognition of "the patriotism and courage of the officers and men of the cargo ships in the victory fleet" and of men in shipyards and factories "whose labor and genius go into their construction."

May 22 is the anniversary of the sailing of the steamer Savannah from Savannah, Ga., in 1819 on the first successful trans-oceanic voyage under steam power. Congress voted in 1933 that each year that date be designated National Maritime Day.

Restriction Removed On Coffee Storage in U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP) The Inter-American Coffee Board removed today all restriction on shipment of coffee to the United States for storage.

The action was taken to aid coffee producers of Latin-American countries in meeting the increasing shipping shortage in the hemisphere. The immediate effect of the resolution will be to allow producers of Venezuela and the Dominican Republic to ship stored coffee to the United States.

These two countries have filled up their quotas for the current year, officials said. Coffee entered under such conditions will be applied to next year's quota.

Awards Made in Negro Art Show Here

Four men and one woman who are contributors to the annual exhibition by Negro Artists of America, now being sponsored for the first time by Atlanta University, have been named winners out of more than 60 contestants. William C. Carter, of Chicago, won the coveted John Hope award of $250 for his oil painting entitled "Still Life." An oil painting, "The Mourners," by Frederick C. Flemister, of Indianapolis, took the Atlanta University award of $100. The second prize ($75) for oils offered by the college was given to Edward L. Loper, of Wilmington, Del., for his painting, "Twelfth Street Gardens."

First winner in the water color group was Charles H. Alston, of New York, who received the first award, $50, for his painting, "Farm Boy." Lois Mailou Jones, of Washington, was given second prize ($25), for her water color painting, "An Old House in Fredericksburg, Va."

The five awards were made by a jury of selection including L. P. Skidmore, director of the High Museum of Art; Jean Charlot, resident artist at the University of Georgia; Aaron Douglas, of Fisk University; Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University, and Hale Woodruff, artist in residence at Atlanta University.

The exhibit which is the first of its kind in the country will continue at Atlanta University through May 10. The public is invited to view it from 1:30 to 5 o'clock on week days and from 4 to 6 o'clock Sundays.

Airport Kiwanis Club Hears Lumberman Talk

Once a month the Airport Area Kiwanis Club asks a member to tell the story of his life at the weekly luncheon. Yesterday the raconteur was T. I. Cantrell, lumberman.

"The sailor longs for the smell of saltwater," he said. "The newspaperman finds it hard to break away from papers fresh off the press. I started in a sawmill, and though I spent years in the hardware business I couldn't resist the aroma of sawdust—and now I'm happy in the lumber business."

President George H. Cushing presided.

Helena Callaway To Exhibit Paintings at High Museum

ATLANTANS ARE anticipating with interest and pride the forthcoming "one-man exhibit" opening Sunday at the High Museum of Art by that popular and talented former Atlantan, Helena Callaway (Mrs. William Hall), now of Washington. Helena is the daughter of those well-known Atlantans, the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Callaway.

Her unusual talent has won for her many honors in art circles in the south, as well as in Washington, and her exhibit of landscapes and etchings will hold an extra thrill, for it means that she returns to her former art school as an exhibitor! It was the year following her debut here that she began the study of art at the museum and later studied in New York and at the Corcoran Art Gallery school in Washington.

During her residence in Washington, where her handsome Army aviator husband is stationed, Helena found time between her duties at home to continue her studies and to attain an exhibitor's rating. It was at the exhibit by the Society of Washington Artists at the Corcoran Art Gallery in 1941 that she received her first award, a medal for the entry of a beautiful landscape. She also exhibited with the same society last season, as well as during National Art Week in Washington and at the Phillips Memorial Gallery.

Helena's exhibit at the museum here is scheduled to run for three weeks, which will afford Atlantans ample opportunity to see her work. She is here for a week with her lifelong friend, Boyce Loeke (Mrs. Harold Martin), on Normandy road.

• • • THERE IS an interesting story behind the beautiful orchid worn by Constance Cone (Mrs. Trenton) Tunnell on Monday afternoon when she attended the cocktail party given for Mrs. Murdock Egan, president of the Garden Club of Georgia, by the Iris Garden Club, of which Mrs. Egan and Constance are both members.

You see, for years Constance dreamed of owning an orchid plant and enjoying the thrill of wearing "home-grown" blossoms. So last year when her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cone, returned from Miami, they brought her one of the cherished plants. Constance gave it excellent care and hoped against hope that it would bloom for the state garden club convention.

Monday morning it opened with all its beauty and Constance donned it with a feeling of pride and a thrill to wear to the initial social event of the convention.

• • • WHEN Chip and Evie Robert were in Atlanta a few days ago, Chip reserved three boxes at the auditorium for the address of Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador to Russia, which will open the brilliant World Affairs Symposium next Monday evening.

Chip and Evie will be back in Atlanta in time to entertain a group of friends in their boxes and also to help along a good cause, for, as you know, Rich's, Inc., is presenting World Affairs Symposium as a civic service in celebration of its 75 years in business in Atlanta. The entire gross proceeds will be given to the Atlanta Chapter of the Red Cross.

Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings writes from Florida that she and her husband, Sarton Baskin, expect to arrive in Atlanta Monday in time to attend the lecture by Mr. Davies that evening. They will also remain over for the forum to be conducted at the auditorium Tuesday evening by James R. Young and Louis Fischer, famous foreign correspondents.

Mrs. Rawlings will speak in Rich's Magnolia Room Tuesday afternoon on "Fact and Fiction." Sandwiched in between

Patriotic Decor Is Planned For Horse Show Next Week

The patriotic motif will prevail in the decoration of the horse show ring at North Fulton Park when the annual ring classic opens Friday, May 8, for five performances presenting blue-blooded of the outstanding stables in the southeast.

Fritz Orr, chairman of the ring committee, reported that the judges' stand will be in the center of the ring where a loud speaker will be installed so that the announcer can keep patrons abreast of decisions and instructions.

Johnny Lucas, executive manager, began weeks ago to bring the ring to a high state of perfection. New turf has been planted and should be in its prime when the aristocrats of horsemanship enter the ring.

The show grounds will be very gay and festive, with the rails proudly displaying a new coat of paint—red, white and blue—and all decorations in the patriotic theme. The Atlanta Horse Show Association, in line with all other members of the American Horse Show Association, will donate the net gate receipts to war relief agencies.

In addition to the boxes on the north side, which usually are sold to regular patrons for the season, there will be 1,000 general admission seats. Reservations for boxes, each of which contains six chairs, are now being accepted by the ticket committee of which Mrs. Marion Candler is chairman. The list is filling rapidly, but many choice boxes still remain. They may be reserved by calling Vernon 6110.

MRS. THOMAS M. BRUMBY.

Mrs. Thomas Brumby Elected Head of State Garden Club

By MARY HARRIS ROWSEY.

Mrs. Thomas M. Brumby, of Marietta and Atlanta, was elected president of the Garden Club of Georgia at the meeting held yesterday. She succeeds Mrs. Mildred Egan, of Atlanta, whose brilliant regime has been one of outstanding progress and success.

Mrs. Brumby will preside at the one-day, wartime business meeting to be held in the spring of 1943 in Macon, and which will take the place of the usual three-day annual convocation. The invitation to meet in Macon was extended yesterday by Mrs. R. C. Dunlap on behalf of the Macon garden club, and was unanimously accepted.

Mrs. Robert Neely, of Waynesboro, was elevated from second vice president to first vice president and Mrs. Howell Newton, of Forsyth, was re-elected recording secretary. Other officers elected include Miss Mary Lou Phinizy, of Augusta, second vice president; Mrs. Langdon Haskell, of Savannah, third vice president; Mrs. Henry Lane Young Jr., of Griffin, treasurer; Mrs. James Ross Henderson, of Atlanta, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Aubrey Matthews of Rome, parliamentary.

Has Rich Experience. Mrs. Brumby is well qualified to fill her office capably, and with a full understanding and appreciation of the numerous responsibilities with which it is vested. Her experience in garden club work and her leadership in other organizations are contributing factors to the competence she will bring to her office.

Mrs. Brumby is a member and past president of the Marietta Garden Club, having resided in Marietta until a year ago, when she returned to Atlanta to make her home. She also is a member of the Planters' Garden Club of Atlanta. Mrs. Brumby held a vice presidency in the Garden Club of Georgia for four years, being first vice president at the time of her election to the presidency. She also has served the club as chairman of admissions and organization, besides being a member of the executive board.

Besides garden club work, Mrs. Brumby is vitally interested in the colonial days of America, and is a valued and active member of this organization. Schedule for DeKalb County Flower Show Is Announced

The schedule for the DeKalb County Flower Show on May 7 at the Decatur High school auditorium has been completed and entries in artistic arrangements are open to any garden club or individual in DeKalb county.

It is not necessary to make reservations for any of the entries except in Class No. 1, and this may be made by calling Miss Tullie Smith at Vernon 1539. If an entry is made by a club, the flowers must be grown in the garden of a club member, and if entered as an individual they must be grown in the garden of the exhibitor. All entries must be at the Decatur High school auditorium May 7 by 11 o'clock.

The following schedule has been arranged: Class 1, arrangement with a figured wallpaper background 24x36x18; Class 2, arrangement suitable for a church of any size; Class 3, Victorian occasional table, victory baskets of fruits and vegetables consisting of adequate supply for family of five for one day; Class 4 and 5, artistic arrangements: (a) in metal container; (b) in pottery not over three inches; (c) modern mass; (d) modern line; (e) in a pitcher; (f) miniature not over three inches; (g) miniature not over six inches; (h) dried material; (i) foliage; Class 6, artistic arrangements: (a) roses predominating in metal; (b) roses predominating in pottery; (c) roses predominating in hemerocallis predominating.

The judging will be on the point system and not by comparison as formerly used. This is more fair to all. Each entry is judged against 100 per cent and a blue ribbon awarded each entry that receives 90 per cent or over. The Chamber of Commerce trophy will be awarded the garden club in the county, not including the Decatur Garden Club, sponsors of the show, that wins the largest number of blue ribbons.

Defense is the theme of the show, and the staging is planned along that line and every garden club and individual in the county is urged to exhibit and attend as the entire proceeds will be donated to the DeKalb county Red Cross. Other information may be obtained by calling Mrs. L. F. Alford at Dearborn 0422, or Mrs. R. A. Manning at Crescent 1051.

Try Green Vegetables For Better Fingernails

By Ida Jean Kain.

If your fingernails break easily, it may be because you don't eat your spinach. What is the connection? The green, leafy vegetables furnish vitamin A in abundance and a deficiency of this vitamin is one reason your nails break.

Nobody could tell you exactly what makes your nails brittle, but vitamins A and B are both necessary to strong nails. You might need more of the B vitamins which come in whole grain bread and cereals and in the newly enriched varieties.

The nutritionists stress the rule of having a green leafy or a yellow vegetable every day. Of the two, the green leafy is better for it is a good source of vitamin A and also contains iron and some of the B vitamins. Your family should have a green leafy vegetable routinely—just like potatoes.

You can't count macaroni, spaghetti, noodles, grits and rice as vegetable. They are cereals and not the whole grain kind. They are good foods and high in calories but they are more valuable when combined with tomatoes or green pepper for vitamin A, or with cheese for vitamins, minerals and protein.

For one reason or another, you need the whole list of vitamins. Another very important one is vitamin C, which is obtained from oranges and grapefruit and their juices, lemons, pineapple and tomatoes. You should have one of these daily. Orange and grapefruit juice contain vitamin C in equal amounts; tomato juice half the quantity; pineapple juice only one-third as much.

If you like as many as six kinds of fresh vegetables and four kinds of fresh fruits, you very likely get enough of the vitamins and minerals. What you probably need to check up on, is milk. Even though you are grown up, you need at least two glasses every day.

Choose the right foods. They not only affect your fingernails, skin and hair, and make a vast difference in your feeling of well-being. If you want to get the foods daily that will make you exuberantly healthy, send large, stamped return envelope to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., for the "Count Your Vitamins" Chart and plan your menus accordingly.

Runyon Would Classify Recklessness as Suicide

By Damon Runyon.

LOS ANGELES, April 29.—Supposing you visit your doctor for a checkup and after a thorough examination he speaks to you about as follows: "Look, Abercrombie. You have a bad heart. In fact, bad is an understatement. It is terrible. I cannot see how you are able to keep navigating with a motor in such frightful condition.

"Abercrombie, old boy" (he says), "you must put up. You must abstain from liquor and from staying up all night. You must avoid excitement in any form and take plenty of rest. If you fail to follow my instructions, your days are numbered. You cannot last another year. Good afternoon. You will find my bill in the morrow's mail."

Supposing that after getting this advice, you rush out and grab a few dozen slugs of liquor, partake in an all-night session of gin-rummy, or perhaps go to the race track and project into your cardiac region the strain of a few photo finishes. All this deliberately, you understand, and in direct violation of the medico's orders and warnings.

Now then, since attempting suicide is contrary to law, would it not be proper if, upon receiving word of your derelictions, your doctors went to the nearest court and swore out a warrant for your arrest and prosecuted you on the ground that you were trying to knock yourself off in defiance of the statutes and had you

Love Is Reason Enough For Forgiving Husband

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

I have been married nearly 20 years. My daughter is in school and my son is working. I know for a fact that my husband has been untrue to me—once in 1935 and in 1940. The woman he had the affair with left here in 1941 and went to Chicago. She wrote him to join her, and he left me and the children and went to her. Now he's writing me and to my daughter to let him come home or let him help us financially. I have asked him for a divorce and he will give it to me. Do you think I should get my divorce and let him go and refuse his money? His mother is very anxious for me to take him back.

HEARTBROKEN AND LONELY.

The whole answer to your problem is: Do you love him enough to take him back after the way he has acted? You seem to be undecided as to what to do, so I think you must love him. You must know, of course, that a man thinks he can run around as much as he desires and then when he wants to come back home, he will be waiting with open arms, and a forgiving heart.

I see no reason in the world to take him back unless you still love him and can forget the past. From your letter, he certainly seems to care very little for you or the children. Perhaps his friend has turned him down and now he realizes that you and the children and his home combine to make the best after all. I certainly think that he should offer some financial help to you.

As for not letting you get a divorce, have you ever entered suit? Unless he has filed a counter suit, there is no reason in the world why you cannot at least, make the attempt to leave him.

WHEN TO SEND GRADUATION INVITATIONS

Dear Dixie: There has been some discussion among the seniors as to how long the invitations should be sent out before graduation. We have our invitations now, but it is a month before we graduate. When would be the proper time to send them?

SENIOR.

Invitations should be sent not later than two weeks prior to graduation.

HOW TO INVITE A BOY TO A PARTY.

Dear Dixie: I am nearly 16 years old. I met an 18-year-old boy who does not live in my town, but in one nearby. A club I am in is planning a treasure hunt and we are all invited to go along. Would it be all right to invite him? I have never dated him but we write each other all the time.

Blondie.

Yes, I think it would be very nice to invite him to go along. Living so near you, it would be very easy for him to make the trip. Drop him a note telling him all about the party and invite him to join you.

Most Screen Stars Keep Silent About the $25,000 Salary Ceiling

By Harold Heffernan.

HOLLYWOOD, April 29.—When President Roosevelt told congress Monday that he believed no American citizen should have a net income of more than $25,000 a year in wartime, he spoke to a vitally interested audience in this land of celluloid make-believe.

Hollywood is the town of fantastic dollars. It boasts more high-salaried Americans per square foot than any other section of the United States. No wonder the ears of movie-makers were glued to radio sets.

All were listening tensely to what the President had to say—the Mayers, the Zanucks, the Coopers, the Colberts and some 350 top personalities of the screen world, who have been drawing staggering sums year to year and picture to picture.

But only a tiny group—two actors and a producer—would offer the slightest comment on the President's remarks.

It appeared that in most studios a blanket order had been issued from the higher-ups urging employees to remain mum. Anyway, they did.

That is, all but Tyrone Power,

Sonja Henie and the ever voluble Samuel Goldwyn, who always can be counted on for a bevy of well-chosen words on any subject of national import.

Power, working in "The Black Swan," his last movie before joining up with Uncle Sam's Navy, was brief and to the point.

"Anything the President says or does is fine with me," said Ty. Proud of her newly-acquired status as a full-fledged American, Sonja Henie, the pint-sized Norwegian skating queen, declared:

"As a citizen of the United States I want to do whatever the President and congress decide is best for our country. No sacrifice is too great to win this war."

Miss Henie earns approximately 100,000 a picture. Just a few weeks ago she completed a nationwide skating show tour which grossed $1,850,000.

In all other sections, however, actors and producers were keeping their views pretty much to themselves.

"Can't blame them, either," remarked one studio attache. "Whatever they say they're behind the eight ball. If they come right out in the open and agree with the President they're practically asking for a cut in salary. If they disagree out loud they're un-American. What would you do?"

If Hollywood personalities must fall in line with the President's idea of a wage ceiling, they last fancy thrills would be trimmed from the screen colony's bizarre way of life.

Mansions in Beverly Hills, Brentwood and Belair, with their corps of servants, their stables, swimming pools and other trademarks of the plush-lined existence led by stars "in the money" might of necessity go by the boards.

Their dark plight brightens a little though when you consider how many players have vast reserves to fall back upon during just such a pinch.

Don't forget that the Coopers, the Beerys, the Tracys, the Grants and 90 per cent of all the headliners of today have been saving their money. Most are well able to convert enough from investments or bank accounts to tide them over a lean salary era.

It shouldn't be forgotten, either, that some of the screen's most highly-touted box office figures are drawing no more than $500 a week, which, roughly, amounts to the President's annual wage figure.

So, don't—not for a little while anyway—look for pictures of Bob Hope cutting the front lawn or Claudette Colbert rushing home from the studio to cook her husband's dinner.

Unlike their free-and-easy predecessors or the silent era, the average Hollywood screen figure of today has been saving against a rainy day. And this one, they insist, is just a shower—with a great big allied rainbow creeping over the horizon.

MY DAY: Charities Must Go On In Spite of War

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY, Tuesday.—This morning I went over to the Naval hospital and returned in time to meet Mrs. Myron Taylor, who came to see me about the USO campaign. She also spoke to me of several other charities, the School for Applied Design, the Purple Box (whose crippled workers have for many years been doing the daintiest kind of sewing) and the New York Association for the Blind. These charities are either giving up in despair, or curtailing their programs, because it is so difficult to raise money for anything but war work.

Our National Symphony Orchestra in Washington has had this same experience. The big gifts have come in, but it is largely supported by small gifts, and this year these gifts seem to be flowing into defense bonds or war charities. I think it is time we consider what we really intend to do about the type of cultural community service rendered by a symphony orchestra.

The school for applied design has trained many women for commercial art. The Purple Box has trained cripples so that they have been able to support themselves. It is possible that women now being trained in the School for Applied Design might go into munition factories for the duration of the war. Perhaps it is one of the organizations which can be shut down, but it will be hard to build up again.

Obviously there is no place in industry for the cripples in the workrooms of the Purple Box. There is comparatively little opportunity for those who are trained by the New York Association for the Blind to get work of any kind until trained.

My own feeling is that we need cultural things like music and painting during these times even more than peace. Those who give small contributions should keep on giving them. Where charities are concerned, we should weigh very carefully the public responsibility as against private effort.

Defense bonds and stamps should be bought, if possible, out of money saved from our actual needs, since we can do without many things without affecting the cultural standards of our community or reducing our standard of living alarmingly.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI). The morning hours and until 12:30 p. m. likely to be filled with petty irritations. This is a time to use caution in travel, communications, in the making of contracts and anything that requires your signature.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER). Before 4:34 p. m. favors attention to steady routine and affairs that have no element of duty attached to them. After 4:34 p. m. guard against disagreements or quick flare-ups.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO). The morning hours and until 1:43 noon are the best hours of the day. This is a favorable period to advance any interest, but especially mechanical, laborious details, real estate, and those that are of a purely personal nature.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO). The same desire for activity surrounds you today which conservatively favors contacting those in authority, making plans, decisions and correspondence.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA). Previous to 11:29 a. m. you are likely to be stimulated to new accomplishments, or undertake something of a larger nature than is usual with you. If you are of a conservative nature, do not hold yourself down too tightly, for your viewpoint on matters will be widened.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO). To avoid the mental confusion that you and those around you feel today, you should work quietly. This is not a favorable day for new beginnings, as your self-assurance seems to be lost.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS). The morning hours are not as favorable as afternoon, however, the entire day is favorable for general activities. Amusements, amusements, artistic ideas, hardware and mechanical work are most favored.

December 22nd and January 19th (AQUARIUS). Previous to 4:47 p. m. is a favorable time for looking up old friends, and for adjusting misunderstandings. This is a most propitious time for having dealings with people of unusual and original ability.

January 20th and February 18th (PISCES). This is a day when you should not allow even slight disagreements to develop, for they will likely rebound to your disadvantage. Business and professional changes are not especially favored. An excellent day to stick to routine.

Sugar Shortage To Mean Better Health

By Dr. William Brady.

Recognized authorities in nutrition find that more than half the calories in the daily diet of Americans are obtainable from refined flour and refined sugar, excellent fuel foods or energy foods in themselves, but practically devoid of vitamins and minerals which are essential for health and functional efficiency.

Probably these days sugar yields as many calories in the average diet as flour does, but it gets one-fourth of our daily calories from sugar.

In the past this excessive consumption of sugar has been held responsible for the prevalence of diabetes, for early decay of the teeth and for vague digestive troubles commonly called "dyspepsia" and sometimes even for peptic (gastric, duodenal) ulcer. All this was based on the observation that concentrated sugar is an irritant to mucous membranes, and the various troubles mentioned were presumably brought on by constant irritation.

Today we do not hold with that assumption. Although excessively sweetened items of food or drink or candy or pastry or cakes carrying almost pure sugar, syrups, etc., are likely to irritate and disturb the digestive organs, we cannot rationally ascribe these everyday American diseases or ailments to harm directly done by sugar. Instead, the newer knowledge of nutrition strengthens the belief that those who consume too much sugar satisfy their caloric requirements with such food and hence have less appetite for or need for natural foods which supply not only calories but also vitamins and minerals required for good nutrition, good health, functional efficiency. If there is a deficit in the intake of certain vitamins (notably D and A, perhaps also B complex) and certain minerals (such as calcium and phosphorus) the teeth inevitably suffer, and this accounts for the poor teeth of people who consume too much sugar.

Any sugar rationing imposed by the state of war may be regarded as a blessing, so far as the health and vite of the American people go. Even if no refined sugar at all were available it would benefit public health by compelling everybody to follow a more wholesome diet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Milk and Mucus Bunk.

I have bronchitis, chronic bronchitis or bronchial catarrh, and doctors have told me a person with catarrh has no business drinking milk—too much mucus. We keep goats and I am very fond of the milk, but on account of my trouble had to quit drinking it some time ago.

Answer—Not a real doctor, but a near-doctor, trick doctor or quack conceived the idea that milk causes "too much mucus." If I were in your place I'd drink quarts of the goat milk daily, or the equivalent in things made with it.

(J. K. B.)

Matter of the Heart.

Fiance classified as IV F by draft board. They said he has arthritis of the heart. Family doctor has told him he has nothing to worry about but does not tell us any more. He works on a farm and does much heavy lifting.

(Miss M. E. M.)

Answer—Arthritis means inflammation of a joint. Perhaps the draft board physician found some evidence of heart damage left by an attack of acute infectious arthritis (rheumatic fever, inflammatory rheumatism). Best course for the young man is to do as his family doctor advises.

Wrote you in 1929 about husband's peptic ulcer. He followed your advice and can now report he is again well, with no more indigestion or other distress. No

David Roberts, Duncan Judge In Horse Show

Miss Ruby Plummer To Handle Horsemanship in 3-Day Event.

Three outstanding judges, all recognized authorities in the horse show world, will come to Atlanta to pass judgment on the various classes comprising the thirteenth annual ring event presented by the Atlanta Horse Show Association.

The caddle classes will be judged by David W. Roberts, of Hartford, Conn., as will the hunters and jumpers; horsemanship by Miss Ruby Plummer, Millersburg, Ky.; and walking horse classes by William Duncan, of Inverness, Mississippi.

Mention of Mr. Duncan serves to remind the horse show enthusiasts that he was to have judged the walking horses in last year's show. He was prevented by illness from fulfilling that engagement, but is making good on his promise now. Incidentally, Mr. Duncan is an acknowledged expert on walking horses. He has specialized in that type and not only in Mississippi but throughout the entire country he is regarded as "one having few equals and no superiors" when it comes to his judgment of walking horses.

Trammell Scott, chairman of the judges' committee for the association; Herbert Oliver, president, and Johnny Lucas, executive show manager, are responsible for having obtained this judging talent. They, along with the executive committee which includes Walter C. Hill, chairman; Major General William Bryden, Dr. Lawson Thornton, W. Eugene Harrington and Fritz Orr, are busy with plans for the ring event which opens at North Fulton Park Friday afternoon, May 8, for a three-day five-performance showing. There will be afternoon and evening programs on Friday and Saturday, with an evening only on Sunday. The entire net proceeds of the show this year will be donated to war relief agencies. That decision of the Atlanta association is in line with the other members of the American Horse Shows Association, Inc.

The advance sale of tickets opened yesterday. Reservations can be had by telephoning Vernon 6110.

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

Baseball In the last few days I have seen baseball, the great national pastime, for the first time. Heretofore I have been looking at it with eyes that were blind. I thought I saw in the home runs and the great plays and the daring dashes around the bases the essentials of the game. But these are only the superficial elements. Just the cream in the coffee.

At last I have seen baseball and what, God willing, makes it a sport that should never perish from this earth. The other night as the last out had been made and the players had left the field, there were a scattered few walking across the field to their automobiles in the parking lot beyond the bleachers.

I was sitting high in the press box working on the story of the game and, glancing down, I saw an elderly gentleman, a touch of white at the temples, leave a companion and walk briskly toward the mound, which was bathed in light.

This erect, stately figure of a man stood on the rounded hill of clay and drew his hands up in pitching motion. He had a sort of devil-may-care smile on his face. He wound up and threw an imaginary ball plateward, and I could almost imagine the picture conjured up in his mind. He had shot a strike past a rival of a day long, long ago.

He walked peppily off the mound and rejoined his companion. They were engaged in earnest conversation as they walked on out of view. He was probably telling his friend about the time he'd been a great pitcher in college. . . .

Calls To Lost Youth And so there was a gentleman calling, through baseball, to a lost youth and rolling back the years with one quick movement of his arm on the old, familiar mound of dirt.

In sharp contrast I saw also the other night, as most of the fans had left the park, a youngster who had run up and patted the night's hero on the shoulder—it might have been Browne or Glock or Cox or Bates—and then went sailing around the bases, hitting the dirt as he reached home plate.

This youngster typified baseball's powerful call to youth. And the gesture the kid made as he patted his hero on the shoulder forcibly brought to mind the obligation a professional has to growing boys.

They figure him a great fellow, or else how could he hit a home run or stop a sharp grounder or make a long running catch of a line drive? How could he do all the running if he were not in fine physical condition?

The kid who dashed around the bases that night pictured himself as his favorite player. He was emulating what he had done in the game that night.

To generations gone by and generations coming on baseball has, through more than 100 years, been a happy medium. It has provided relaxation for men and women and inspiration for growing boys.

Out of the game have come great soldiers, civic leaders, evangelists, outstanding ministers of the gospel, strong, powerful, forthright men. . . .

Imperishable Link Baseball essentially is the same game it was a century ago. There have been no basic changes—except in the make-up of the crowd. . . .

Ladies had no part in baseball in the so-called good old days. It was a bit too rowdy, too uncouth then. So there has been a great change in only one respect. . . .

A great institution in the baseball parks of America today is ladies' days or nights, as the case may be. A feminine voice is the first to reach above the maddening crowd when anything happens at a baseball game. Ladies will cheer a foul ball as enthusiastically as a home run.

And I think I know the reason why. Baseball offers expression that home life subdues.

In other words, a chance to let one's hair down, rant at the umpire a bit, cheer a strapping male who is the physical antithesis of the "old man," and generally enjoy an afternoon or evening in perfect peace. And a good thing for domestic felicity baseball is and has been. It saves the "old man" a few verbal raps . . . and the kids a few desultory slaps.

Baseball is the perfect outlet for nerves and patience worn thin by the sameness of the everyday routine. And so I say that, God willing, it is a sport that should never perish from this earth.

It is an imperishable link that connects a man with youth lost long ago . . . and it is a never-changing pattern guiding the footsteps of hero-worshipping youngsters in the right direction.

Tennis Club To Elect Officers

Annual meeting of the Atlanta Lawn Tennis Association, scheduled for tonight at the Athletic Club, is important to members and all others interested in the amateur game.

There will be election of officers and plans for the new season, including possible clinics, schedule of tournaments, etc.

An expansion of tennis locally, in line with the increased sports program of the Hale America idea, is planned and the more who attend the meeting, which is planned to be brief, the better. So much more can be accomplished.

The annual meeting is scheduled at 7:30.

Crackers Shade Pebs To Lengthen Lead

Relief Pitching Of Lochbaum Is Game-Saver

Jim Trexler, Ex-Cracker, Hurls Well But Bows, 4-3.

By JACK TROY.
Constitution Sports Editor.

Former Cracker Jim Trexler toiled manfully for eight innings and gave up only four hits, but timely Cracker hitting, plus bases on balls and Little Rock errors enabled Atlanta's league leaders to add to their advantage as they won the second straight game in the series, 4 to 3, last night.

It was another thriller-diller decided by a lone tally and with the outcome hanging in doubt until the last man was out.

Larry Miller officially was credited with the victory, his third of the season, but Larry wasn't around after the sixth and actually the expert relief pitching of Emilie Lochbaum brought the ultimate victory.

No credit can be taken away from Miller, as he allowed only one run and four hits in his six innings, but Rookie Jim Mertz faltered in relief and Lochbaum choked a potential rally in the seventh. A barrage of base hits greeted him in the eighth, but he worked out of the inning with the Crackers still in the lead, and then in the ninth he successfully staved off another rally to keep the Crackers moving farther out in front in the annual flag chase.

MAYBE STORMME. Lochbaum was to have pitched the final game of the series with the Pebbles tonight, but his role of rescuer calls for another. Perhaps it will be Floyd Stromme.

Bases on balls and errors, more than any other factor, led last night to Trexler's downfall. He gave seven walks and his teammates committed four misplays afield.

The Crackers were outthit, seven to four.

There was a rare sight of an umpire being turned upside down. Howard Camp apparently thought Letchas was coming in sliding in the third, and Letchas apparently didn't see Camp. It was quite a collision, with Camp landing on his head. He was dazed but a somersault. Neither was injured.

It was one of the last Cracker home games for Buddy Bates, who enters the service within 10 days. Buddy got one of the hits and made a great first-inning catch to prevent the Pebbles from scoring.

RUFF CHUCK. The Crackers all but muffed a great opportunity in the first inning. They had all kinds of scoring chances but managed only one run. Thomassie slapped a triple up the first base line and Letchas followed with a single. The Crackers went on to load the bases as Glock forced Bates, who had walked, and O'Brien drew a pass to first. Trexler rescued himself by taking Browne's grounder and turning it into a double play.

Also in the third inning the Crackers failed to take full advantage of a great chance to pile up a strong lead. Letchas walked, Bates singled and Letchas was safe at third on O'Brien's fielder's choice, filling the bases with only one out. Browne flied to right and Letchas scored after the catch. Smith grounded out to put an end to the rally.

Little Rock scored a run in the fourth. Schalk walked and McBride singled. Schalk raced home as Tyack hit into a double play.

ANOTHER SCORE. The Crackers kept hammering away and scored again in the sixth. Tyack dropped Browne's fly and Smith went safe on Hancock's error. Blakeney walked. Cox batted for Miller and as he hit into a double play, Browne crossed the plate.

Letchas drew the seventh base on balls given by Trexler to lead off the seventh. He advanced on Bates' sacrifice and scored on Glock's single for the fourth Cracker run.

In the eighth the Pebbles cut loose with a double-barreled attack and almost caught up. Trexler, Faustet and Korte hit, successive extra-base hits just inside the first-base line. Trexler had reached second on his double when Korte walked a triple, then Schalk hit a double to score Korte. There was one out as Schalk went out on McBride's fielder's choice. Tyack grounded out.

Oglesby walked with one away in the ninth. Delasega made it two out. Trexler worked the count to three and two, then drew a walk. Thus the tying and winning runs were on base as Korte lofted to Thomassie for the final out.

SLAUGHTER I-A. ROXBORO, N. C., April 29.—(AP)—Enos Slaughter, 26 and married, St. Louis Cardinal right fielder, remained in Class I-A after a session with his draft board today. He left immediately afterward to join his team and said he would play until notified.

Joe Louis Attends Blackburn Rites CHICAGO, April 19.—(AP)—Jack Blackburn, ring-cagey Negro who developed Joe Louis from an awkward amateur into the world's heavyweight champion in less than three years, was buried today in a $5,000 casket under 15 auto loads of flowers.

An overflow throng of 2,300 mourners filled the church while 8,000 more milled and pushed outside, blocking traffic.

The noted trainer's casket was covered with a blanket of yellow roses and white lilies, sent by the boxing champion, Louis, wearing his uniform of an Army private, sat with the other pallbearers. His head was bowed.

The champion came from Fort Dix, N. J., to attend the services.

THE TRUSTY WAR CLUB—Friolan "Nanny" Fernandez, rookie third baseman of the Boston Braves, examines his war club closely to make sure it's in shape to keep him at the top of National League leaders. He's leading in number of hits with 22 after slamming out a double and three singles Tuesday against the Cubs. He came to Boston from San Francisco, where he topped the Pacific Coast League last year in total hits, total bases and runs batted in. Fernandez is second in doubles in the National League. He is shown in the Cubs' park, where he hit a homer Wednesday in the ninth inning.

Y Comrades Open Fights Saturday

Behrendt (65), Daniels (76), Colesworth (78), Groover (80), Humphries (82), Pherson (87), Gunn (90), McCravy (91), Chalm (92), Harris (99), Wise (102), Mills (104), Neely (108), Hall (107), Landum (111), Parry (113), Bug Stephenson (85), J. Stephenson (76), Jones (86), Spittler (75), Pharr (110).

Other entries not yet weighed in, include: Clark Harris, Forest Fowler, Tommy Bell, Joe Stalander, Don Wyal, Dick Burrell, Jimmy Mitchell, Rollin Hall, Harry Thigpin, John Murphy.

Clower Is Winner In Women's Play

The Metropolitan Women golfers played at Forrest Hills yesterday and Mrs. C. C. Clower captured low net in the A division with 77. Mrs. A. M. Dimmock was first in B division with 71.

In a special blind putting event Mrs. L. H. Beck finished first, having 17 putts for 12 holes. Three tied for top honors in the second division, with Mrs. J. J. Garrett, Mrs. T. A. Branch and Mrs. J. C. Mullins requiring 19 putts.

Low scorers were Mrs. Claude Swinney and Mrs. Dimmock, with 92s.

Bowling News

The first ladies' head-to-head bowling tournament ever held in Atlanta will get under way tonight at 8 o'clock at the downtown alleys. Practically all of the top bowlers of the city will compete, including the members of the National tourney team, Estelle Warrington, Jewell Jones, Evelyn Traber, Johnnie Carter, Martha Cleveland and also many of the other top flight bowlers. After each round, the losers drop out and the winners progress to the next round.

Walter Lawson continued his high scoring with a set of 157, 159, 143—459 Tuesday night in the Gate City League. This ties the alley record for a three-game set.

Lawson was on a strike in his last frame of the third game and needed 10 count for a new alleys record. His first ball was right where it should have been, but the break was a seven and a nine—an impossible spare, so he played it safe and got one for a tie with the record.

Bates received his papers yesterday, and has been ordered to report to the Naval Air Station here. He will make his last appearance here Sunday against the Memphis Chickies, his old team.

There is a chance Bates will make part of the road trip with the Crackers as he will have a week left before reporting for duty.

The Cracker management will do the best they can to replace Bates, but it is extremely difficult to fill a spot that was occupied by one of the finest center fielders in all baseball.

Loss of Bates is damaging. The Crackers had the outstanding team in the league with him and may still have the top team without him, but they will miss the great plays he makes and also his timely hitting.

Bates made a typical play last night. It came in the first inning with two out and Little Rock runners heading for home. Tyack hit a short fly and Bates speared it on the dead run in back of second base.

Bates enlisted in the Air Corps earlier in the spring and was notified that he would not be called for a period of four to six weeks. So the Crackers had him fly here from his Los Angeles home to help out as long as he could. Just as he has performed as a champion center fielder for the Crackers, Bates will keep 'em flying for Uncle Sam.

Devil Diver Is Derby Favorite

Requested Gets Second Choice For Big Race

Consensus Gives Sweep Swinger Best Long-Shot Chance.

By SID FEDER.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 29.—(AP)—The Beat-the-Big-Hoss Society for the Improvement of Derby Long-Shot Stabbers held a meeting today and decided that if some fancy figured unknown is going to knock off Devil Diver Saturday it could very well be his former pal and stablemate, Sweep Swinger.

The society's delegates to this 68th Kentucky Derby—which Colonel Matt Winn, headman at Churchill Downs, intimated today might lure 100,000 cash customers—felt pretty good about their chances this time, largely because the 16 horses set to go were generally regarded an ordinary lot, compared to the fancy fellows you usually find in the run for $75,000.

At the same time, however, while just about everyone, including the trainers of the other contenders, conceded that whichever beats Devil Diver would pick up the whole pot, there was a growing feeling that before many weeks pass, Warren Wright's Sun Again probably would be showing the whole bunch the way home in the coming stakes.

Trainer Ben Jones repeated that he hasn't yet made up his mind about sending the son of Sun Teddy to the post Saturday, because he still behind in his training, despite his second place finish in yesterday's Derby trial. Plain Ben is wondering, as a matter of fact, if he could get a post-ponement of the Derby. He feels you'll hear quite a bit from the husky chestnut in the Preakness and Belmont.

Thus, the field of 16 at this moment is headed by a horse named after a duck. A Devil Diver's a variety of duck, and that was the Diver's mother's name. So Mrs. Payne Whitney pinned that tag on the horse.

And the general consensus was that Ben Whitaker's Requested, Emerson Woodward's pair of Valinda Orphan (the Derby trial winner) and Hollywood, Al Sabath's Alas and Sun Again had the best chances to throw a monkey wrench into the Greentree hopes.

But when you dig down the list to those who'll pay off at the telephone number prices—if they win—the best bargain looks like Sweep Swinger, pride and joy of the barn of T. D. Buhl, the Detroit real estate and manufacturing man. The rangy, shuffling chestnut, claimed by Buhl from Mrs. Whitney for $2,500 last year, doesn't look the part of a pick stake winner, but his flying fourth in the Chesapeake two weeks ago, his triumph in the Endurance handicap when he came first, a completely unknown two-year-old last fall, and his stretch whirl to close a chunk of ground on Alas and Bless Me in the Walden just before that, show he can run the better part of any afternoon. And that Derby mile and a quarter is no walk around the block, folks.

5 Tracks Pledge Heavy 'War Aid'

NEW YORK, April 24.—(AP)—New York's five major race tracks took definite steps today toward a substantial contribution to the war effort—perhaps as much as $500,000.

Representatives of Jamaica, Aqueduct, Empire City, Belmont Park and Saratoga tracks voted unanimously that "each should give as a war contribution the first $100,000 earned as profit and before payment of a dividend."

Joseph L. Cohn, public relations director for the five tracks, said no decision had been made as to the distribution of the money the tracks would contribute.

"First," he said, "it will be necessary to see what profit is realized by each track after payment of taxes and all expenses. Each association, presumably, will decide where it wants its share to go."

It was impossible to estimate accurately just how much money would be turned over to war agencies under this plan. There was no certainty that $100,000 profit would be realized by each of the five tracks.

New York Night Baseball Ban Looms After 'Dim-Out' Order

NEW YORK, April 29.—(AP)—New York moved tonight to ban night baseball and other illuminated sports for the duration of the war as a measure of coastal defense after the Army turned enforcement of its new "dim-out" order over to local authorities without making an objection to night sports.

Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine, of New York, indicating that all sports requiring artificial illumination would be prohibited here, declared the dim-out regulations "will affect baseball and other sports at night, since the lights can be seen above the horizon. That means they can be seen far out at sea."

Valentine's statement followed that of Major General Irving J. Phillipson, commander of the 2nd Corps Area, who said:

"The enforcement of the regulation covering the dimming of lights in the coastal areas of the 2nd Corps Area were placed in the hands of the state and local authorities concerned for enforcement."

Earlier, however, an Army spokesman had indicated that night baseball did not present a problem. He told the Associated Press that "all we are interested in at present is dimming shore lights so that there will be no bright phosphorescent glow against which a submarine can silhouette a ship."

But at Hackensack, N. J., where a group of civilian defense officials were preparing to make off-shore observations of the dim-out for the second straight night—Colonel Walter W. Metcalfe, acting director of the 2nd Civilian Defense region, said the OCD felt that a glow in the sky would be as helpful to enemy craft as a background of building lights.

Permanent Patent Reform Proposed

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(AP) A permanent "reform" of patent laws was proposed yesterday in a measure offered jointly by Senators O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming; Bone, Democrat, Washington; and LaFollette, Progressive, Wisconsin.

O'Mahoney said in a statement that the new bill was framed to "eliminate abuses which have been revealed" by the recent hearings of the senate patents committee on a wartime patents seizure measure introduced by the same three senators.

The senator said the new bill would, among other things, compel license of patents that were unused for three years without reasonable cause, or if the patentee refused to issue licenses for a reasonable fee. Another section would bar patents sales of signments "which would tend substantially to lessen competition or to create a monopoly unless such restriction is necessary to promote the progress of science or the useful arts."

Yonge School State Guard Is Damaged Band Concerts Heavily by Fire Are Scheduled

Loss to 2-Story Structure Is Estimated at $60,000.

Fire of an undetermined origin extensively damaged the Yonge Street school at 97 Yonge street, S. E., early yesterday morning, according to fire reports.

Damage to the two-story brick structure was estimated at approximately $60,000 by T. W. Clift, business manager of the Atlanta school system. The loss, however, was covered by insurance, Clift said.

The fire is believed to have started on the second floor at the southwest end of the building but the cause of the blaze has not been determined. The blaze was confined to the roof and second floor of the building.

The 1,200 Negro students who attended the Yonge Street school will finish the year's work at the school on Houston street, according to M. E. Coleman, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of elementary work. Double classes will begin at the Howland school this morning, he said. Skin-Grafting Job Saves Leg Of Injured Man Delicate Operation Performed at Savannah Marine Hospital.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 29.—(P) A painstaking job of skin grafting has saved the leg of a young Spartansburg, S. C., highway construction worker who had expected to undergo amputation of the limb.

Doctors at the Marine hospital here performed the difficult task of transferring skin from Archie A. Calvert's stomach to his leg by first grafting his arm to his mid-section, and later transferring arm and stomach skin to his leg.

Calvert was crushed three years ago when a 600-pound concrete pipe fell on him while he was working on a government project at Spartansburg.

The injury caused osteomyelitis, an inflammation of the bone marrow and later developed into a large ulcer on his leg.

A surgeon raised the skin of the patient's stomach and sewed one of Calvert's hands to this skin, leaving it there for 10 weeks. Then he cut the hand from the stomach, taking part of the stomach skin, with hand still attached, then was grafted to the leg and left thus for four weeks. Then Calvert's hand was cut from his leg.

The grafted skin, now being supplied with blood from the leg, was spread over the rest of the affected area of the leg and a cure effected.

Calvert is now preparing to leave the hospital.

Quantity Sugar Trade Listing To End Today

Rationing Registration To Be Completed at Three Schools.

Registration for rationing of wholesale, retail and conversion sugar trade will be continued in three Atlanta schools throughout today, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Office of Price Administration.

Those unable to register before the deadline last night will be given an opportunity to do so between the hours of 3 and 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at J. C. Brown Junior High, in West End; Bass Junior High, in the northeast section, and O'Keefe Junior High, in the northwest section, the announcement said.

Registration for rationing proceeded "fine" throughout the eight Southeastern states under the jurisdiction of the regional office, Alexander Harris, regional executive, said yesterday.

E. L. Floyd, principal of Commercial High school, where the bulk of registration was handled, said "the splendid co-operation of the registrants made a difficult job easy."

Jere Wells, of the Fulton County Board of Education, said registration in the county schools was much lighter than had been anticipated. Registration was handled in the 10 senior high schools in the county.

No Delay Granted For Evans Trial

Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court, yesterday refused to grant a motion for postponement of the trial of Dr. Hiram W. Evans, former imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, charged with conspiracy to defraud the state, scheduled to begin May 4.

Judge Humphries announced that all seven judges of the superior court had held a meeting Tuesday to discuss trial of the 10 state graft cases set for May 4. "We agreed to furnish all the judges needed to insure immediate trial of these defendants if necessary," he said.

The judge said that the request was premature and should be decided by Judge Virlyn B. Moore, in whose court the case is to be tried. Defense counsel said that Evans was at present working night and day on the emergency construction of airports for the government at Dunellon, Fla.; Savannah, Statesboro and Valdosta, Ga., but the judge replied that he would not be disposed to continue a criminal case on such grounds.

WLB Is Divided On Labor Bill

WASHINGTON, April 29.—(P) Members of the Senate Labor Committee reported today that there was a division of opinion among members of the War Labor Board as to the necessity for legislation to stabilize wages and settle such controversies as the closed shop demands of unions.

Chairman Thomas, Democrat, Utah, of the committee, told reporters that Wayne L. Morse, representing the public on WLB, and Thomas Kennedy, labor representative, thought no legislation necessary, while Edward McMillan, of Nashville, an employer representative, thought "some legislation would be helpful."

The committee called in the board members to obtain their views on pending labor legislation.

Maddox Patrons Promised School

Patrons of the Maddox Junior High school, which was burned recently, yesterday held high hopes of a brand-new and permanent building in time for the next fall term, following a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the school, on Tuesday night.

Three candidates for mayor who were present were asked by J. Allen Couch, councilman, to answer yes or no to the question: "If elected will you request the budget committee to add $85,000 to the $220,000 now available for a new school?"

Dewey L. Johnson said he would, provided the appropriation didn't affect the pay of city employees; John A. White said that if the money could be found he would vote to rebuild the school at once; William B. Hartsfield said he would build not only a new school, but rebuild the Jones avenue bridge.
